Gilead Congregational Welcomes New Pastor

By Michael Sinkewicz

Hebron's Gilead Congregational Church is set to introduce its new pastor at a kickoff event next weekend on Sunday, Sept. 17, following an extensive search.

The Rev. Brian C. Hardee officially began his new role in July, but as summertime comes to an end and programs such as Sunday school start back up, many parishioners and community members are eager to meet the new pastor.

"It's a homecoming rally kind of a moment," Hardee said, adding that the weekend will include several fun activities and an ice cream social.

So far, he's off to a good start.

"I'm happy," Hardee expressed, as he walked around the church grounds. "It's felt right every step of the way."

The church's longtime beloved pastor the Rev. Denise Esslinger retired in 2021 after a 22-year stint leading the congregation. For about two years, Rev. Matt McCaffrey has served as the interim pastor.

Esslinger was a fixture in the community and her impact cannot be understated, Hardee said. "Everyone I meet talks about how involved, how active and passionate she was," he expressed. "She left them in a good place."

But the church is gaining an experienced and charismatic pastor to lead them moving forward.

Hardee was born in North Carolina and moved to Germany when he was 5 years old, as his father was stationed there with the Army at the time.

After returning home at the age of 10, he later attended North Carolina State University. At first, Hardee was determined to become a professor and pursue a career in teaching. He began taking more philosophy and religious courses due to a growing curiosity in the subject, and shifted his focus to potentially teaching those topics.

Hardee went to the Yale Divinity School where he continued to focus on becoming a professor, but opened his mind to other aspects of being a minister. He met an individual who was going through a relationship crisis, who he assisted. The person told him, "You're going to make a great minister someday."

That comment continuously bounced around his head; it was a path he hadn't truly considered before.

"It wouldn't let go," he explained.

So Hardee began purposely taking classes and following up on opportunities that immersed him in a new field and away from the "comfortable" path.

He became an ordained minister in the United Church of Christ in 1996; he received his doctorate of ministry from the Lancaster Theological Seminary in 2005.

Hardee began serving as a pastor in Pottstown, Pa., where he met his wife. Most recently, he's served as the senior pastor of West Avon Congregational Church in Connecticut for the last 17 years.

In 2017, his wife passed away. As his four children continued to grow up – his youngest started at UConn last week – it was perhaps time for a change.

There were a few draws to Hebron — Andrey Stolyarov, the minister of music at Gilead Congregational Church, was his director at West Avon for seven years.

Esslinger's longevity was also a good indication, he added.

"It's appealing to find a place that wasn't so tumultuous; it speaks a lot."

And then the search committee hit all the right notes — "They were fun, it was energetic and lighthearted and real."

"The warmth of the welcome and the interest has been fantastic," he said.

There's been potluck dinners, picnics and a movie night — another good sign.

"In so many places, it's hard to get people to volunteer and be a part of the activities — and that hasn't been the case here," Hardee said. "They're just enthusiastic. It's easy to feed off that energy."

As a 27-year pastor, there's a certain level of

UK Guitar Player Returns to Marlborough

By Michael Sinkewicz

A U.K. guitar phenom is returning to Marlborough next week.

James Oliver, of South Wales, will once again be performing at The Farm at Carter Hill in Marlborough on Sunday, Sept. 17; he'll take the stage at 1 p.m. Last summer, Oliver made his U.S. tour debut, which also included a stop in Marlborough.

Tickets for the upcoming show are available for $15 online at www.eventbrite.com; tickets will also be sold at the door, for $25.

In 2020, Oliver was deemed Emerging Artist of the Year at the UK Blues Awards and currently boasts 20,000 YouTube subscribers, amassing over nine million total views. His album Twang was #1 on Amazon Blues Charts for three weeks.

"This is a world-class guitar player," said Glenn Holley, Oliver's U.S. manager.

Holley, a longtime Hebron resident, initially discovered the Welsh guitarist a few years ago online and was impressed with his talent. He reached out on Facebook, and the two quickly forged a friendship, bonding over an affinity for the musician Danny Gatton.

Holley offered Oliver the chance to play Gatton's classic 1954 Gibson ES-295 guitar, which he acquired and loans out to local players.

"My intention was always to get him exposed to the U.S. market," he explained. "He's destined to be a worldwide guitar hero."

And about eight months after their friendship sparked, Oliver was showcasing his skills at Carter Hill, playing the Gibson guitar.

"It was a thrill," Holley recalled, adding that Oliver will once again borrow the instrument. "It's an honor."

Audience members are encouraged to bring their lawn chairs and blankets and enjoy the "best small music venue in Connecticut," according to Holley.

Oliver told the Rivereast that he's prepared for "fun and dancing."

"I hope they expect a good time," he said. "The main focus of my music is the guitar but I like making people laugh with my onstage banter."

Holley agreed — "he's hilarious."

Standing well over six feet, Oliver has quite the stage presence. He described his music as "Welsh rockin' blues," and a "mix of blues, country, rockabilly, rock n' roll and a bit of Zappa Captain Beefheart."

Oh, add in his "Welsh sense of humor."

"He was considered the world's greatest unknown guitar player," Holley said. "But he

Observations & Ruminations

By Mike Thompson

Looking for something to do this weekend? Well, Rivereast-land has you covered.

As Michael Sinkewicz previewed last week, the Hebron Harvest Fair is back for another four days of fun. There will be rides, vendors, many local arts and crafts on display – and of course tons of food. Glorious, deep-fried delights. (Don't worry, you can walk off those calories on the fairgrounds.)

Among the fair fare, as Mike wrote about last week, will be fried dough, corn dogs, lamb and chicken gyros, hotdogs topped with pulled pork, apple crisp, appleflappen and caramel apples, and slow-roasted roast beef sandwiches.

And you can then wash all that tasty grub down at the beer and wine garden. Beer offerings this year include Coors Light, Blue Moon, Two Roads Lil Heaven, and Harpoon Oktoberfest. (It is almost fall, after all – despite what the temperatures suggest.)

There will also be the favorite fair attractions, like tractor pulls, pig races and the Dock Dogs canine diving events. The Axe Women Loggers of Maine are returning this year – featuring world-champion choppers, log-rollers and axe-throwers. Among the new attractions this year will be the Pork Chop Revue, where families can enjoy the “semi-acrobatic antics” of pigs.

It wouldn't be a Hebron Harvest Fair without live music – and lots of it. Among the acts will be the Doobie Brothers cover band Brothers Doobie, '80s arena rock tribute band Backstage Pass, and this year's headliner, southeastern Connecticut native Tim Cote.

So head on over to the Hebron Lions Fairgrounds on Route 85 for a guaranteed good time. The fair runs through this Sunday, Sept. 10. More information is at www.hebronharvestfair.org.

On Saturday, you can take a break from the fair and head over to Colchester for another fun activity.

In Colchester, Celebrate Colchester will return on the Town Green, from 1-5 p.m. Formerly known as the 57 Fest (a name that frankly should've been retired long before it was), this year the event has an added twist: it's kicking off Colchester's 325th Birthday celebration.

Girls on the Run... Online registration is now open for the Jack Jacter Intermediate School's Girls on the Run team. The team, for girls in grades 3-5, will meet every Monday and Wednesday at JJIS from Sept. 11-Nov. 18. This is a 10 week curriculum-based program designed for every girl; no running experience needed. Register online at tinyurl.com/yrwn2hvz.

I am so grateful for the growing trend among TV news anchors and reporters to caution me that I may find the video on an upcoming report 'disturbing.' I am grateful because it alerts me to look up from whatever I am doing to see what could possibly be considered especially 'disturbing' for viewers these days when virtually everything is disturbing.

Sadly, I'm generally disappointed. Compared to those painful TV ads trying to raise funds for the rescue of abused animals, or the violent mayhem we see every day on popular television shows, most of the 'disturbing' video on our news stations is pretty mundane. On the other hand, with the emergence of personal Safe Spaces and our crippling emotional vulnerability to stupid stuff people used to view as merely a routine annoyance, I can see where news stations prefer to err on the side of caution.

Still, it tends to get a little ridiculous as the number of warnings—which were once a rarity—continue to multiply. Allow me to put aside my legendary wide-eyed idealism for a moment in order to offer a cynical recreation:

News Anchor: We have a late-breaking report from reporter Stephanie Blahblah, who just arrived on the scene of this latest tragedy. Details remain sketchy. I must warn you, however, that some viewers may find the scenes we are about to show disturbing. Stephanie?

Stephanie: That's right, Ron. The video is difficult to watch. Viewers who are concerned about reality intruding on their precious Safe Space may want to close their eyes and cover their ears and chant 'nah, nah, nah, nah, nah' until we break away. Okay, let me move in a little closer with my cameraman. This is the scene we found when we responded to a report only minutes ago. Take a listen.

[Camera zooms in on a section of sidewalk]

News Anchor: Oh, my gosh! That's terrible!

Stephanie: Yes, Ron. This is hard to take. Hopefully, any children among our viewers are too engrossed in their violent and bloody video games, shooting and dismembering zombies and drug dealers, to glance up and be emotionally scarred by this horrifying tragedy.

News Anchor: My parents have told me how they grew up watching bloody film of the Vietnam War every evening on the nightly news, but this is ... it's ... so now.

Stephanie: I know. There should be no place for this sort of thing in today's America, where everyone is a victim and it is so easy to be emotionally damaged. But we must show it nevertheless. Even if we often block out the best parts. Our ratings demand it.

News Anchor: Right. It's a tough business.

Stephanie: It certainly is, Ron.

News Anchor: So, what exactly is it?

Stephanie: What's what?

News Anchor: That ... that thing on the sidewalk. What is it?

Stephanie: It's a dead cricket.

News Anchor: My Lord. The poor thing. What happened to it?

Stephanie: It died. One minute it was scuttling along minding its own business, and the next minute, it was just a goopy smear on the concrete.

News Anchor: But how? What happened to him? Or her. Or it. I guess I should say 'them.' What happened to them? And who should be held accountable?

Stephanie: They were ... I mean, they were ... Since there's only one, it should be 'they was,' right? I mean, in order to be both politically and grammatically correct.

News Anchor: Frankly, I have no idea. No doubt somebody with nothing else to do will call in and threaten to sue us in any case.

Stephanie. It looks like the poor thing suffered traumatic crushing of some sort, Ron. It could have been a reckless jogger or possibly some thoughtless child on a bicycle. A malevolent old woman with a walker and a chip on her shoulder. Who knows? It's hard to say without a more thorough investigation. The incident may have been captured on someone's door camera.

News Anchor: Is that a detached leg lying there? Next to the cigarette butt?

Stephanie: Could be a leg. Might be an antenna. Looks a little too big to be some sort of gender appendage, but I'm not very well versed in cricket anatomy.

News Anchor: My goodness. There's a traumatizing thought, though it might solve the 'he, she, they, who, what' dilemma. Thank you, Stephanie, for your great reporting. Be safe out there.

Stephanie [wiping off her shoe]: Thank you. This is Stephanie Blahblah reporting. Back to you, Ron.

News Anchor: Next up, a White House spokesperson will dodge questions and spin reality at the daily press conference with reporters. I am compelled to warn our viewers that some of you who are running out of patience may find this upcoming performance highly disturbing.

[Well, at least he got that right.]

Correction

In last week's story on Brainerd Place in Portland (page 25), First Selectman Ryan Curley was reported as saying that as a result of studies showing a “relatively small impact” of school-age children from the apartments, 70% are one-bedroom units and 30% are two-bedroom ones. However, the use of “as a result” made the statement inaccurate. The percentages are what indicate the “relatively small impact”; they are not a result of anything.

The Rivereast regrets the error.

Eyes Toward the Future

To the Editor:

As a current educator and Marlborough parent of preschool and elementary students, Amy Kuhrt represents a knowledgeable, reflective, and in-the-trenches asset to our Board of Education team. Amy's leadership and vision will continue the momentum of positive shifts as we look to support our MES staff and families with both policies and thoughtful financial budgeting.

I strongly endorse Amy as a representative for our MES school community.

Jan Barone – Marlborough

The Perfect Fit

To the Editor:

Amy has so many qualities that make her a perfect candidate for our Board of Education, among them being her drive to continue improving our children's education and school experience. As a mathematics educator and the mother of an MES student, she is both knowledgeable and passionate about test scores, school security, and budgeting. She is eager to work with our teachers, school leaders, and board members to make positive changes happen.

I will have the utmost confidence on Sept. 12 as I vote, knowing she has the best interest of Marlborough students, families, and teachers at heart.

Allison Batista – Marlborough

Hebron BOS Meetings

To the Editor:

Good day. There has been a letter followed by a question asked of me concerning why we are not going back to “in-person” meetings. A brief history. My time on the BOS has been years. Prior to COVID, and doing the meetings virtually, we did the meetings at the Town Hall. Except under very rare circumstances, we would be lucky to have one or two people from the public in attendance. We did use Facebook, but the complaints as to the quality were continuous. People couldn't hear, the picture was poor. We also tried the “Community Channel.”

With the start of COVID, and us going entirely to virtual meetings, the number of people tuning into the meetings has been staggering.

Young people with children can attend and leave as they wish. No more “packing up the kids to go to a meeting.” Seniors don’t have to brave going out at night, driving, and braving the elements. There are those who have told me that they get together over coffee and watch the meetings.

We, as a board, did put approximately $60,000 aside (out of ARPA funds) for the purchasing and implementing of a system to do both “in person and virtual,” but, upon receiving cost estimates which all came way over budget, it was determined to stay with the virtual (3 to 1 vote). I would also state, with the hits our budget has taken, I look at those kinds of expenditures as being unwise and not in the best interest of the town.

Thank you,
Daniel Larson – Amston

Note: Larson is chair of the Hebron Board of Selectmen, but said he is speaking as an individual.

Supports Hills

To the Editor:

Kim Hills is a fine candidate for the town of Hebron Board of Education. She is caring and has great character. I know her through the Hebron school system and have always been impressed with her capability, commitment, and work in the local community.

Her knowledge of the school system and understanding of students’ needs qualify her to be on the Board of Education. She is a really good choice and will be an asset to the Hebron Board of Education.

Sincerely,
Maureen Murphy – Hebron

Democrats Work Hard

To the Editor:

The East Hampton voters have an important task before them: vote for the team that will continue to support East Hampton’s needs and its residents. As I look back, I am reminded of all of the important plans and decisions that were made in 2021. The Town Council was made up of five Democrats and two Republicans. Prior to all meetings, Mr. Brown made sure that all members were aware of the agenda and the plans for discussions. This leadership informed all seven members before every meeting, leaving them time to ask questions and prepare for the meeting. This leadership considered everyone’s ideas and comments.

Some of the important votes during that term included approval of the bid for the Lake Aeration Project, acquiring land near Christopher Brook to protect our lake. Due to these efforts, our lake quality has improved! The Democrats also reduced the interest rate on delinquent tax payments, approved the high school field improvements including the tennis court, track, correction of drainage and laid the groundwork for a municipal water system on Oct. 7, 2020. They also discussed the future of the East Hampton Library/Senior Center.

Because of the “forward thinking” of our Democratic-led Town Council, these projects are continuing and are creating positive outcomes for East Hampton. They initiated conversations with ideas to relocate our fire department. Now we are realizing those ideas have created a path to move our fire department to new headquarters. Now is the time to reach out to our Democratic candidates for 2023 and be included in their thoughts and ideas. They are running for office so East Hampton can move forward and they encourage the residents to reach out to them.

Contact Rich Knotek, Dean Markham, Jack Solomon, Karen Wanat and Jordan Werme to discuss your ideas and thoughts for East Hampton! They will listen!!

EH Community Cares

To the Editor:

East Hampton Community Cares brings together seniors like me and disabled people who need help with people looking for volunteer opportunities. Are you like me needing: help around the house, rides to medical appointments, help with yard work; or know someone who does? Do you walk with a cane or walker; or know someone who does? Are you on a fixed income; or know someone who is? You could volunteer for someone like me who would so appreciate the help.

Are you a member of any club in town? Or a member of a church group? Would they like to join this effort, like The Rotary Club, the Senior Center, and the Commission on Aging? Being part of the effort includes, mobilizing your membership to the kick-off meeting on 9/13, getting folks to sign up to volunteer or receive help (see website below), or donating through the Commission on Aging. Commission members can make a presentation to your group or church. Contact the senior center at the email or phone number below to set that up.

Come meet me at the kick-off meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 13, introducing East Hampton Community Cares. One session is at 2:30 p.m. in the East Hampton Senior Center; the second session is at 6:30 p.m. in the East Hampton Public Library; I’ll be at both. Please register in advance so we know how many will attend, and for refreshments, by emailing seniorcenter@easthamptonct.gov or calling 860-267-4426. Walk-ins are also welcome. The website to learn more is URCommunityCares.org. There is no fee to sign up because the Commission on Aging is raising the sign-up money.

See you Sept. 13,
Beth Angel, Member
East Hampton Commission on Aging

Many Thanks

To the Editor:

I would like to send a thank you out to all the registered Republicans in town for signing my petition to hold a Republican primary on Sept. 12. I also met some pleasant community members in town, hope to return a favor to them if ever needed. Registered Republicans will have the opportunity to vote all day. The flawed Republican caucus was held on Friday, July 21, at 5:30 p.m., during summer vacation weeks and at a time many were not even out of work.

Over the course of 10-plus years, I have been proud to serve my community in several capacities, including: chair of AHM CHEC Coalition, chair and vice chair of the RHAM BOE, local BOE, vice chair of RTC and founding member of the Independent Party. I have a bachelor’s degree in accounting and have been working for a banking software company for the past 25 years.

My primary goal as an elected official over the years has been to represent our children in our community. I’m looking to expand my duties and join the Board of Selectmen in November. My accounting, project management and over 10 years of experience sitting on Board and Commissions will allow me to immediately contribute to this Board.

I hope to have the opportunity to continue to demonstrate to you and our community that my selection would be an asset because of my dedication and community focus. I’m excited at having the chance to truly listen to the opinions, concerns and ideas of our community and ensuring we are all heard.

I am fortunate to be campaigning with Chris Barella for BOS along with Kerri Barella and Amy Kuhrt for BOE. Follow our Facebook page “Republicans of Marlborough, CT” for more information about us. Your voice matters; hope to see you on Tuesday, Sept. 12, from 6 a.m.-8 p.m., at Marlborough Elementary School.

Susan Stolfi – Marlborough
Note: Stolfi is chair of the local and RHAM boards of education, and is also a founding member of the Marlborough Independent Party Slate Committee, but said she is speaking as an individual.

Attention Hebron Candidates

To the Editor:

As a lifelong resident of Hebron and a bonafide, if not vilified, suburban peasant I have avidly read all Hebron candidates’ letters in the Rivereast. I’m impressed by the thoughts and proposals presented, but have found a common denominator missing – preservation of Hebron’s historic heritage. Therefore, I would like to encourage candidates to address this issue in their future letters to the Rivereast editor.

Hebron’s motto is “Historic Charm with a vision for the future.” Selectmen swear to preserve Hebron’s “rural historic character.” It necessarily follows all town committees, commissions, and employees are charged with the same responsibilities.

Recently, a divide has emerged between Hebron’s government and Hebron’s citizens centered on preserving Hebron’s rural historic heritage making preservation a central issue to November’s election. How should Hebron’s children learn to value their town’s past? What role will preservation play in shaping Hebron’s future?

To date, preservation of Hebron’s heritage has been a deflated football aimlessly tossed about. No town properties have ever been acquired for their historic value. Few historic structures are designated Historic Properties. Four town-owned Historic Properties will be abandoned if Hebron’s Center is relocated as proposed in Hebron’s Masterplan page 114, 2014 Plan of Conservation and Development.

Hebron has a documented 10,000-year-old history, one of the few towns in Connecticut with this distinction, but Hebron is in danger of losing all connections to its past, if elected officials fail to take positive steps to preserve sites and educate Hebron residents effectively linking the town’s past to the future.

This then begs the question of all potential candidates. How will you, if elected, preserve Hebron’s past and chart a course for its future?

Given the Public Works Survey comments, it seems historical preservation is on many voters’ minds.

Respectfully,
John Baron – Hebron

Bogus Commentary

To the Editor:

Well, Joe Stevens fired up his turd launcher last week and let me have both barrels. There’s a reason why they call it a turd launcher, and Joe has a big one.

Joe offered a rebuttal letter last week that raises considerable questions about the concepts of intellect, rational thought, and rampant buffoonery. In another callous, tone-deaf, and dismissive letter, Joe exemplified how progressive liberals pervert reality and concoct a series of baseless narratives to protect the “Progressive Liberal” brand. Joe seems to think that Ashley Biden’s assertion that daddy showered with her when she was 11 years old is just an “obscure reference” to a diary entry. I don’t have kids. Do fathers normally shower with their pre-pubescent daughters? Most glaring is Joe’s half-baked rationale for vilifying Trump and his assault case while calling Bill Clinton’s behavior “well-publicized dalliances” and “inappropriate behavior from 25-plus years ago.” To actually put that in writing takes some stones, Joe. I wonder if any of Bill’s victims agree with your terminology. I’m sure George Stephanopoulos does. And be honest...did you ever hear of E. Jean Carroll before the Trump case? Where was she for 25-plus years? All of a sudden she surfaced when it became fashionable to sue Trump for sneezing. And, curiously, Judge Lewis Kaplan, a Democrat, is a Clinton appointee in the Southern District of New York, and attorney Roberta Kaplan (no relation) is married to Admiral Rachel Levine in the Biden administration. Rational minds are curious. Yours isn’t.

The reality is: Democrats don’t get prosecuted.

(Lack of) Accountability

To the Editor:

What does government accountability look like? Well, if you're an elected official who has never been held accountable for their actions then it would probably look "political," in bad faith, or even mean spirited. I liken it to a spoiled child finally being told no, they can't get that new toy they just have to have. That mental image you no doubt have right now? That's Colchester politics, in particular the established Democrats and those they've found to insulate their actions from criticism.

They are used to being able to act with impunity, and why wouldn't they? This year is the first year in over a decade that the Democrats have run more than two candidates for the Board of Selectmen. Why does that matter? Because without a serious third-party challenge both major parties are guaranteed two seats on the board. This not only means a seat doesn't have to be earned, it removes the citizens' only means to hold their elected officials accountable. It's no wonder they feel and act entitled and untouchable when their party has rigged the local game to ensure that they are.

Impunity has no place in government but it's been allowed to fester because the same group of insiders have ruled the roost for decades. It's those same faces, surrounded by their hand-picked replacements, on the ballot this November. They're promising to bring things back to the way they used to be. Back to a time where taxes were illegally adjusted and embezzlement plots by their friends quietly swept under the rug. Back to the system they crafted to benefit themselves at our expense.

I'm the only BOS candidate talking about real change to our local government - new faces, new ideas, and common values. Ask yourself, why is that?

Jason LaChapelle - Colchester
Libertarian candidate for Board of Selectmen

Dems for Civility

To the Editor:

Fourteen Democrats are running for town office in November. A like number of Republicans are vying for those offices. Regardless of who wins any of the races, one thing is for certain: there will not be unanimity at Town Hall. Probably never was, and probably never will be. Given the budget battles of the past two years (and more), dollars and cents will be a primary driver of disagreement.

The recent budget brouhahas appear to have been fueled mostly by Republicans' single-minded focus on keeping taxes low; a laudable but quixotic goal. We've seen the damage done to Colchester as a result. It would be foolish to state that under a Democratic regime all would be sunshine and rainbows. However, the Democratic slate of candidates is less likely to hold the town hostage to the conservatives' single-minded agenda. They are more likely to lead even-tempered boards to find equitable solutions to fiscal dilemmas. While the boards control town functioning, the other offices support the boards' impartially; statutes require that they do.

We all must vote our conscience in November. If your conscience is strictly self-centered, then vote for those who you think will save you a buck at any cost. If you are community-minded and want to see the entire Colchester community thrive, you have other choices. Keep these names in mind for moving forward in November: Bernie Dennler, Rosemary Coyle, Denise Turner, Dave Koji, Scott Chapman, Karen Belding, Gayle Furman, Chris Rivers, Michelle Millington, Stefanie Tracey-Calash, Andrew Cournoyer, Krista Kardys, Sean Gillespie, and Michele Wyatt. Fourteen folks who want to work as a team to better Colchester. They won't all win, but it would be nice. Nice for Colchester.

John Barnowski - Colchester

Shared Services

Dear Colchester Residents:

Last week, I wrote about how management of Colchester's finances seems to be slipping through the cracks in the first selectman's office. The failure to produce an on-time audit threatens our bond rating which impacts what we all may end up paying for town projects. To move forward, I believe we need to work on restoring shared financial management between the town and schools.

Colchester taxpayers deserve full oversight of their tax dollars. Our town charter was written with a chief financial officer in mind. Historically, the CFO oversaw both the town and BOE finances. Under the current administration, we've seen this relationship severed and the CFO replaced with a separate finance director for the town and a business manager for the schools. This year's budget and audit process saw plenty of finger-pointing between the town and Board of Education for various issues. Looking from the outside, it was sometimes hard for residents to know who was telling the truth in the absence of any shared oversight.

If elected, I will bring together representatives from the BOS, BOF, and BOE along with the superintendent to develop ways we can restore a degree of shared financial services and give taxpayers both transparency and confidence in our town's finances. The first selectman cannot single-handedly force a given solution, but I will lead the charge for a change. Over the last year, Colchester has spent tens of thousands of dollars on consultants and temps to fill in the gaps in the finance department. The current approach is neither efficient nor cost effective. It's time to reevaluate. We cannot undo the botched financial transition that occurred last year, but as first selectman I will act quickly to stop the bleeding.

Sincerely,
Bernie Dennler - Colchester

not only witnessed the strength of our community but also understand the unique needs it holds. My journey as a parent is intertwined with my passion for education, as I have a 7-year-old daughter who is currently in second grade at Andover Elementary School. This experience gives me firsthand insights into the challenges and opportunities that our students face daily.

I firmly believe that parents play a vital role in the educational process and should have meaningful input into shaping it. Education is a partnership between schools and families, and by actively involving parents in decision-making processes, we can create a more holistic and effective learning environment. As an officer on the Parent Teacher Association (PTA), I have actively worked to bridge this connection, fostering open communication and collaboration to enhance the educational experience for our children.

My credentials include an MBA from Western New England University, 30 graduate credits in secondary education from Drexel University, and an ongoing journey towards a PhD. My passion lies in bolstering our community, and I am dedicated to leveraging my experience to make a meaningful impact in shaping the future of education for all children in Andover.

Resist...We Must!

To the Editor:
 You're an apologetic American, fixated on righting past wrongs. You worry constantly about the future desert your children will live in due to the drastic effects of "climate change." You want to "fight the power"...whether it be in the form of systemic racism, the patriarchy, fascism, homophobia, xenophobia, or transphobia. Your intentions are good, your cause is just, and you're in the majority. You are the resistance.

Your viewpoints align perfectly with those of multimillionaire celebrities/influencers, media personalities, and big tech CEOs. You envision a future of sustainable development in which man lives in harmony with nature. It just so happens that those exact same goals are supported by the United Nations, World Economic Forum, every governmental and Marxist-aligned organization on the planet. You are the resistance.

You unquestionably embrace new technologies and smart tech as any new development will help increase efficiency and improve our everyday lives. You'll boycott the local grocery store, bakery, or breakfast spot because you know they are unapologetic Christians, while you check on the status of your Amazon delivery...as it's running late from its Chinese sweatshop. All this new technology is wonderful and you refuse to entertain the possibility that through your acquiescence a digital prison is being erected around us. You are the resistance!

You have come to the conclusion long ago that God is dead and that science holds the keys to understanding the world around us. You're too intelligent to believe in some man in the sky or an afterlife...especially when science has brought us an age of enlightenment. With a future led by scientists we can finally unshackle ourselves from the confines of morality and virtue and develop a world based solely on data, peer review, and scientific consensus. You are the resistance.....and resist, we must!!!

Economic Development, Part II

Dear Colchester Residents:
 While our town has seen a tremendous comeback, it is important to keep the momentum going. The town will continue to work with prospective businesses by keeping our taxes low, reviewing zoning regulations to ensure they put citizens and small businesses before government, and meeting with interested parties to ease their transition. As someone who has been around small businesses my entire life, I understand the plight of our hardworking entrepreneurs.

While past administrations may have slept on projects, I have re-energized initiatives. In my first term, the Town Green Revitalization Project was completed. In my second term, the town is poised to see the Lebanon Avenue Streetscape Revitalization Project come to fruition. These enhancements will make one of the more neglected parts of town a very attractive one for prospective businesses.

Investing in green energy initiatives will be another important cornerstone. I recently signed a contract to bring the first-ever hybrid charging station to Colchester, with it to be installed at the Town Hall. Plans include expanding out to other locations as well. The town is also very close to signing a solar lease agreement with Silver Brooks Solar which will net the town a lump total of $214K.

The town will continue infrastructure improvements in public spaces with investments in our roads and bridges, begin the expansion of the operational quarters of the Police Department, oversee the construction of the Town Hall roof, modernize the Town Hall's HVAC, and refurbish the water towers. The town is also exploring the privatization of its water systems and will continue to increase funds set aside for Open Space acquisitions that reduce the overall tax burden while securing our small-town feel.

Sincerely,
Andreas Bisbikos
 Colchester First Selectman

Trump

To the Editor:
 Psst! Wanna be a fake elector? All we need is 16 and a ringleader (the Hamburglar?), to sign a fake affidavit you are duly sworn (damned?) and certified to throw out every vote of fine people of the Peach Tree Dish State of Georgia cast in 2020. Don't worry, it's ok; Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin, New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada are doing it too! For who else but your favorite president, better than Lincoln (couldn't figure out the Civil War!). Talk about probing the election system for weaknesses; Trump gave it an enema no one ordered, wanted or needed.

We pay the bill. Jared gets $3 billion to invest from the country that sent us the Twin Tower bombers. Talk about a $250 million dollar finders fee injection of capitol. Jared's first investment? Residential solar (VIROSA) company, Mosaic. Can you say right-wing cabal?

Short list why you should vote for Trump: Put Chinese flags on our planes, bomb Russia and let them fight it out; Bomb Mexico and blame Ubekestan; Best three days of Queen Elizabeth's life where the ones spent with yours truly.; Real truth is I won Georgia by 400,000 votes, at least!; I'll suspend the Constitution I swore to defend; Joe Biden can't put two words together in a sentence (just ask Mitch);

Running for Reelection

To the Editor:
My name is John Dillon and I am running for reelection to the Portland Board of Selectmen. As a fourth-generation Portland resident I credit my parents for instilling in me a deep appreciation for our town's history, the importance of public service, and the firm desire to give back to my hometown. I am a graduate of Portland High School and Central Connecticut State University. My wife Maura and I have three grown children and two amazing grandsons.

After 35 years with the Connecticut Department of Social Services, I retired in 2022 as statewide program director for the Office of Child Support Services. As director, I administered a multimillion-dollar federally mandated program composed of more than 300 statewide staff from departments within the executive and judicial branch.

I have served our community as chairman of the Board of Assessment Appeals, assistant scoutmaster, vice president of the Portland Agricultural Fair, Portland Inland Wetlands Commission member, and a lector at St. Mary's Church. I am a Justice of the Peace, member of Freestone Council No. 7 Knights of Columbus, and currently chairman of St. Mary's Parish Council. In 2013 I was privileged to be a recipient of the Ralph Paley Spirit of Portland Award.

Portland's future includes great opportunities like the Brainerd Place development and riverfront properties improvement, coupled with some complex decisions like school facilities enhancements and development of a town-owned water source. With creativity, long-term planning, sensible fiscal policies, and realistic expectations we can successfully meet the future needs of all residents while also supporting practical economic development.

I would be honored to serve my community once again on the Portland Board of Selectmen. I ask for your vote on Nov. 7.

Sincerely,
John H. Dillon
Candidate for Reelection to Board of Selectmen

Accountability Should Be Bipartisan

Dear Colchester Residents:
What if I told you a Board of Education member was at one time banned from attending events at school and arrested for an incident involving a child... would it matter if that person was a Republican or a Democrat? Would that change what accountability looks like? As a Republican, I can tell you accountability is different between the two major political parties.

That scenario did happen, the individual is a Democrat, and that individual currently holds elected office. That person had another incident at a recent town meeting. There was silence from the Democrats. It's become a common occurrence for Democrats in public office to ignore bad behavior. When confronted with accountability, they often "circle the wagons" to protect their party image. That's not accountability, that's condoning bad behavior.

In September of 2022 the Republican party was not happy with the performance of First Selectman Andreas Bisbikos. They held a vote of no confidence; the Rivereast ran the story. It's not a sign of dysfunction; it's evidence of transparency and accountability. You let the other person know something isn't right, and hopefully they work to change it. In the case of Mr. Bisbikos, there was a course change, and that has earned him the party's nomination to continue in his role as first selectman. I've heard from many citizens that he has been the best first selectman in their lifetime. That doesn't happen without a commitment to transparency and accountability.

I'd like you to personally consider whether you value affordability, transparency, and accountability. If you share those values, the Republican candidates in November would appreciate your support.

Sincerely,
Michael Dubreuil - Colchester
Candidate, Colchester Board of Finance

Citizens' Comments

To the Editor:
This past weekend I had the opportunity to come to some of your doors with members of my fellow Democratic team, both incumbents and exciting newcomers. Thank you for taking the time to speak with us and let us know your thoughts about Colchester.

We heard one constant theme about your concern for Colchester's financial stability with no audit for 2021-22 and the possible downgrading of our bond rating with two important projects on the horizon that will need bonding - the new senior center and the fire apparatus.

Additional comments we heard loud and clear were that you don't like or understand the personal attacks on individuals and believe candidates should speak about issues or their experience. Personal attacks have no place in Colchester.

You especially don't like all the chaos. Someone said it best: "I just don't like what's happening in our town." We agreed.

Also on Saturday, Sept. 2, the Senior Center Building Committee (SCBC) held a special meeting at the SC building site. Building committee members and interested citizens were there to participate and ask questions.

It was truly exciting and emotional for me to see the steel rising from the foundation because I've worked on this project for so many years.

This project is happening because of many people in the past working together to move this forward.

All we need now is for the first selectman and the finance chair to move the additional appropriation that we've needed since October 2022 forward to referendum. This will allow the SCBC to use the Bendas Memorial donation of $575,000, the $32,961 from the State ARPA grant money, and provide the funds to cover the shortfall from escalating building costs.

I continue to stand up for Colchester and its citizens every day that I serve.

Sincerely,
Rosemary Coyle - Colchester

Hope Church

To the Editor:
The seniors would like to thank Hope Church for the fantastic picnic that they had for us a few weeks ago. We had a great time with the families of the church. The kids were so much fun. We had fun playing corn hole and bingo.

Again, thank you so much from all at Bellwood and Chatham.

Humbly Request Support

Dear Fellow Portland Residents:
My name is Jillian Crawford and I am excited to announce my candidacy for the Portland Board of Selectmen.

I am deeply committed to serving our town and upholding the values that make it such a welcoming community. I believe that public service is not only a responsibility but a privilege, and I am eager to contribute my skills and expertise towards town progress. As a lifelong resident of Portland, I believe that my first-hand experience paired with knowledge acquired through tertiary education affords me a unique perspective on the governance of our town; this perspective has driven me to seek a role where I can make a meaningful impact within the community.

From kindergarten through high school, I attended Portland Public Schools, graduating from Portland High School in 2017. I went on to study politics at the University of Connecticut and matriculated as an Honors Scholar with a Bachelors in Political Science. I am now working on my applications for law school which I hope to begin in the Fall 2024 semester.

I believe that our town's financial stability is crucial for its growth; as a Board member, I will work to ensure that taxpayers' money is allocated wisely, providing essential services while also investing in avenues that will enhance our town's future. I will strive to identify new sources of revenue, reducing the burden on taxpayers and supporting sustainable development. I also hope to promote transparency and accountability within local government. By fostering a culture of openness, we can ensure that our community stays informed about town issues.

I am thrilled by the prospect of serving on the Board of Selectmen and I humbly request the support of my fellow residents in this upcoming election.

Sincerely,
Jillian Crawford - Portland
Candidate for Board of Selectmen

One Final Word

To the Editor:
"Silence." Silent are the skies. Silent is the barn. The hawks have left. Silence prevails.

The barn swallows departed on the recent North winds. They took advantage of a tail wind to help propel them halfway down the eastern seaboard. When flying to Central America, an easy first leg of the journey is a blessing.

Silence can be deafening. And this is truly an example of that.

Leash Your Dog

To the Editor:
A certain person allows her very large and aggressive white dog to run free around the dam area of Andover Lake. A few months ago my fiancée purchased a small and loving puppy, part Cavalier King Charles spaniel and part miniature poodle, who we named Charlie. She did this to bolster my spirits following months of radiation treatments for cancer and now a hip replacement. Charlie has become a very important part of our lives, mine especially, bringing joy and wonder with his myriad playful ways and constant affection. Unfortunately, we have now had a third serious aggression from this person's dog, while my fiancée walks our leashed Charlie down by the dam.

In each of the three aggressions, this dog ran up to my fiancé, with teeth bared and growling, the first times standing over our cowering Charlie who was shivering at my fiancé's feet. This latest aggression, my fiancé picked Charlie up, holding him high in her arms while the aggressor, who stands a bit higher than my fiancée's hip, once again growled and bared his teeth, seemingly with the intent to leap up and grab Charlie. My fiancée shouted at the owner, "This is the third time!" The owner responded "Christie, we share the planet." My fiancée responded, "Then be responsible and keep your dog on a leash - this is unacceptable." The owner then retorted, "Your behavior is unacceptable."

Believing in the adage 'three strikes and you're out,' I write this public letter, admonishing the owner to forthwith leash their dog, Charlie, and all other leashed small dogs, have the right to 'share Andover Lake,' and enjoy long and happy dog lives with their loving, responsible owners.

Supports Kuhrt

Dear Marlborough Residents:
As the elections are quickly approaching, I am excited to share my support for Amy Kuhrt, an exceptional candidate for the Board of Education position. Amy is a dedicated educator and a parent of two young children who are beginning their Marlborough Elementary experience. Her vested interest in the education of Marlborough's youth and her experience as a teacher make her an excellent advocate.

I strongly urge you to consider Amy Kuhrt for the Sept. 12 primary election. She is committed to the well-being of Marlborough's learners and will positively impact the education system.
Erin Pitrone – Marlborough

Fact-Checkers' Credibility

To the Editor:
You can't always believe these so-called "fact-checkers," especially if you have a question about our government. These people verify government questions by asking our government. I once asked where Obama was born and was told Hawaii. If so, why is his Social Security number one that is only issued to residents of Connecticut? Why are there only a handful of college students that went to the school he did that can remember him? He claimed to be a Christian. How many other "U.S.-born citizens" have a name Hussein? Why did more Muslim refugees enter our country under his rule than all our other presidents combined?

Frank Blume – Colchester

It's About People

To the Editor:
When I joined the Marlborough Democratic Town Committee, the furthest thought in my mind was running for the Board of Selectmen. For my entire life I've been politically engaged in issue that I feel strongly about. But there's a difference between standing with a sign or participating in 'sit-ins' getting involved and making change. After living in Marlborough for over 25 years, I've decided I need to run for a position where I can have a real impact.

My background is in property management and real estate, but what really qualifies me for government work is the years I spent in the dug-out as an assistant manager for my son Brendan's little league team. Marlborough Youth Athletic League is where I learned the importance of teamwork. The preteen boys had their own interpretation. They spent most of the time seeing who could stuff the most pieces of double bubble in their mouths at the same time, much like today's congressmen shoveling perks into their pockets. Boys will be boys.

The time spent with those young men will resonate with me forever. These young men taught me compromise and to support your teammates even when they strike out. These lessons are important still today. Two decades later some of these players are my closest friends. If I'm lucky enough to be selected by the voters of Marlborough I will bring those tenets of teamwork and compromise to my work on the Board of Selectmen.

It's not about politics; it's about people. My hope is that my kids, and the many I coached, can foresee a bright future as Marlborough residents.

John Rizza – Marlborough

Picking Person

To the Editor:
I am writing to endorse Kim Person for the Andover Board of Education. She will be a positive addition to the board. Her experience as the town children's librarian was an opportunity to work with children. Then while employed at ECHN in the medical library, she ran a licensed, childcare center in Andover that was quite successful for 20 years. She continued working and learning at UConn Health. She grew up in Andover and her children went to Andover Elementary, so she's very "rooted" here.

I believe she will work hard to make sure the children get a good education and be mindful of Andover's senior population who try to survive on fixed incomes, as well as the citizens in general. She will work to keep a responsible budget while ensuring a good education for our children. She will foster an open-door, transparent and positive role as a member of the board and she's a good listener.

I'm endorsing her wholeheartedly for the Andover Board of Education.

Respectfully submitted,
Georgette Conrad – Andover

Taking Credit

To the Editor:
In a recent letter in the Rivereast News Bulletin, the chair of the Board of Finance stated that our first selectman prioritized investing in our fields as he secured significant ARPA funding for field irrigation systems and invested in a field feasibility study. She also stated that the first selectman secured a new playground, new pickleball courts, new basketball courts and a new roof on the RecPlex pavilion.

The truth is that Colchester formed an ARPA committee to make recommendations to the Board of Selectmen on how to distribute the ARPA grant money we received from the federal government. All of the projects at the RecPlex were approved by the unanimous vote of the BOS, not just the first selectman. She also stated that the first selectman invested more in our families and children than any other first selectmen before him. Previous selectmen were not afforded the opportunity to use millions of dollars from an ARPA grant to invest.

The first selectman would like you to think that all of the recent projects in Colchester were a result of his administration. If there was no ARPA grant money, none of these projects would have been completed. Don't be fooled by the lack of transparency from our current first selectman as he quotes transparency software as the cure all. Transparency starts at the top.

Michael Hayes – Colchester

Note: Hayes is a member of the Colchester Board of Finance, but said he is speaking as an individual.

In Support of Kim Hills

To the Editor:
I am writing in support of Kim Hills' decision to run for the Hebron Board of Education.

I met Kim when she was a senior in high school. I have had the pleasure of watching Kim grow into quite an accomplished woman. Kim is one of the most kind, compassionate, understanding, and fair-minded people I know. Kim would be a great asset to the Hebron Board of Ed. Kim has the ability to be open-minded, listening to all sides of a subject before making a decision. Kim has spent her career in education with full dedication. Whether Kim is teaching, coaching or parenting, Kim gives her all.

The reason I know so much about Kim firsthand is I am her mother-in-law. Kim would be a great asset to the Hebron Board of Ed.

Denise Hills – Hebron

Civic Duty No. 1

To the Editor:
Tuesday, Aug. 22, was one of the top five most beautiful days of the year. The humidity broke, air poured down from the north and the temperature was perfect. As I walked Kinney Road, in Hebron, I watched hay being baled. Neatly formed rows of dried grasses were being drawn into a baler and uniform bales of hay were left in its wake. For over 50 years I have been fascinated by hay and balers, and hay has played a large role in my life all along. I then met a couple who spoke of older hay machines pulled by oxen and steam powered tractors that were soon replaced by gas powered machines.

On this day, the corn stood tall over head and a worn-out farm truck rattled by, full of sun-drenched young people, eager to help hay. "That's Hebron," I thought, not the negativity surrounding residents defending drinking water and history.

In some trades, on-the-job training is still the best way, if not, the only way to learn. One can read about balers and living the farm life, but until you get out there and "stub your toe" you don't know much.

People talk about pavement with brick-and-mortar educational centers, but, with all due respect, education is already happening on Kinney Road and it has been for hundreds of years. There's no replacing the real thing and there is no replacing our farmland, water or history. This is a valuable lesson we must address.

Development is easy, so is pollution; easy and permanent. But land and water preservation takes foresight. Does Hebron have a civic responsibility to do right by the next generations? Teaching respect for our land, water and history is an important and honorable lesson. #save17.

Jean Tulimieri – Amston

Setting the Record Straight

To the Editor:
First Selectman Bisbikos prominently highlights accomplishments on his website and advertisements that seem misaligned with historical facts. For instance, he associates himself with a gas station expansion and the potential arrival of Chipotle in our town. It begs the question: How exactly was he pivotal in these ventures?

Moreover, his claim that he's the only first selectman in the past 15 years to bring significant developments to the Jack Chevy property needs to be more accurate. The site couldn't be developed because of environmental issues. The environmental cleanup was completed before he took office, and he had little to do with a company from New Hampshire buying the property.

As engaged citizens, we should encourage transparency and accuracy from our elected officials. Misrepresenting achievements doesn't just mislead voters; it undermines the integrity of public service.

Another Successful Year at The Haddam Neck Fair

By London Brazal

Farmers and agricultural enthusiasts fathered for the annual Haddam Neck Fair which has become a cherished tradition in the community. This year marks the 111th annual fair and the association aims to promote an “independent, family-oriented, major social and agricultural event.”

Rated as one of Connecticut’s major agricultural fairs, the fair has it all from carnival rides and exhibits to food and competitive contests. The events ran from Sept. 1 to 4, with more than 1,000 attendees throughout the Labor Day Weekend.

The tractor and truck pulls, a thrilling and crowd-pleasing event, took center stage as enthusiastic fans gathered to watch the powerful machines. The deafening roar of engines competed against the cheers of families and friends creating an electric atmosphere. Similar to previous years, the pulls bring more crowds to the fair on Fridays and Saturdays.

East Hampton High School Class of 2020 graduate Philip Wentworth has been going to the Haddam Neck Fair since he was young and enjoys spending time with his friends. His favorite events include the tractor and truck pulls because of the crazy competition. He and his friends believe the Labor Day weekend is the perfect opportunity to kick off fall and enjoy a day off.

“It’s a great way to connect with former friends and members of the community you don’t normally see, said Wentworth.”

Jenna Gagné, another longtime fairgoer, was the chairperson for the kid’s games. Her job was to organize and run different competitions such as the watermelon eating contest, the egg toss, and the three-legged race. The egg toss is always an exhilarating yet messy competition, this year’s winners were Joseph Bugai and Alexander Bowling. For the fair, Gagné had a team of high schoolers to help run the events smoothly. Her favorite part of the weekend was spending time with her cousins. “I got to go on a few rides with them which is always so fun because I don’t get to see them often,” said Gagné.

Throughout the years, the Haddam Neck Fair has had new additions. Last weekend, there was the inaugural Power Wheels Derby. Gagné’s dad, Jason, built a massive figure eight of tires that kids raced through in power wheel cars. “It was the cutest and funniest thing I’ve ever seen in my life,” Gagné added. With a break in her schedule, Gagné also got to compete in the Redneck Strongman/Strongwoman contest. After proving strength by throwing a tire and more, she won, alongside Noah Freeman.

Agricultural fairs are more than just a showcase of farm animals and crops the Haddam Neck Fair is famous for its exciting and competitive contests that people of all ages can compete in. Other contests included the women’s skillett-throwing, best beards, special sunflowers, and baking.

The annual 5K Road Race had over 200 participants and the average finish time was 33 minutes. The winner of the race was 23-year-old Jordan Akiyoshi with a time of 17:58. Second and third place had times under 19 minutes, those were 15-year-old Evan LoPresti and 17-year-old Louis Viliano. Of the top ten, Brittany Griffen was the first female to place with a running time of 19:38. The youngest runner was only 4 years old and the oldest was 82.

One change this year was to have larger performances at the Music Bandstand at night rather than various groups throughout the day. Musical guests featured Max Creek, Downtown 6, The Linda Rondstadt Experience featuring American Idol finalist Tristan McIntosh, Rock Landing, and John King all the way from Nashville.

Overall, the fairgoers loved the music and Fairgoers of all ages gathered at the annual Haddam Neck Fair to spend time with family, watch tractor pulls, and dance the night away. Philip Wentworth has been attending the fair since he was little. Now, he gets to appreciate the same events he enjoyed as a kid.

were satisfied with the different genres for those who went more than one night. Old and young couples were showing off their dancing skills. Even volunteers were able to take a break from their responsibilities to listen and dance.

With over 25 vendors, the fair had something for everyone – including pets. Some vendors included Grateful Paws Pet Treats, Made by Melanie Rose Hand Crafts, NPCR Aluminum Wall Art, and Ocean Fashion Clothing. Ultimately, this year’s fair was a success.

Throughout its history, the Haddam Neck Fair has been an entirely volunteer-based operation. The Board of Directors members said they thank every person who made the event possible. The members added they are excited to start planning next year’s fair.

Epoch Arts' Biggest Fundraiser Set Next Week

By London Brazal

For five months each year, the arts-for-youth nonprofit Epoch Arts prepares its largest fundraiser – a fall tag sale that impacts many.

Starting in April, residents from the community dropped hundreds of items off to donate at the lower level of Epoch's Skinner Street buildings. Then, a group of volunteers worked tirelessly to organize the donations into categories. Though, unlike some tag sales, the Epoch Arts yearly fundraiser benefits many people who are involved in the process.

Elizabeth Namen, the organization's artistic executive director, sees the event as an opportunity for people to support a talented group of young artists. Epoch Arts moved into the factory building in 2005 and has renovated various rooms to fit the company's needs. When the space was bought, there were leftover items and Namen got permission to sell them. "And that was the start, Organically, we made some money and it kept on growing," Namen said. At first, it started on the main level and the organization would have to move everything each time the theater was needed. "Another group of renters left and we moved the tag sale downstairs so classes could start and we didn't have to move it again."

By moving the tag sale into the lower level, Epoch Arts was able to utilize more of the building as they renovated and cleaned. One year, weather was a large issue and tents were blowing away while other items got damaged by rain. "It was a lot of work to move everything outside and back inside," Namen said.

Beth Cunningham, a longtime volunteer, values the community for contributing to the annual tag sale. "It gets bigger and bigger every year. People can't possibly have more stuff to donate!" said Cunningham.

The tag sale grew so big that Epoch eventually had to make it a two-weekend event, and now it takes place over six days (including Fridays) every September.

ery September.

The fundraiser is 100% volunteer-based. There are about 30 volunteers who organize, clean, and price items. Many of them had kids involved with the program and helped since the first tag sale.

"They bring their lunch and it gives them a reason to get out of the house. They work for a dinner at the Athenian [diner in Middletown]. It may seem small but it's a big celebration and a sense of accomplishment," said Cunningham. She volunteers to give back to the program, especially since the fundraiser helped her children participate with scholarships.

Other volunteers include students who attend classes. "It's full circle. It's good for the kids to sit with the seniors and hear their stories while they have more company," Namen added. At the event, students from the high school involved with Interact will also come by and pitch in.

Barbara Hallberg, Namen's aunt, said she enjoys helping with the fundraiser and organizing items.

"Beth is the boss. But really, I enjoy it. It gives me something to do," she said.

Another helper, Donna McGuigan, volunteers because it helps Epoch Arts, and they did a lot for her granddaughters.

Each year, the outcome and success of the tag sale improve. As Epoch Arts' biggest fundraiser, it helps the nonprofit to provide scholarships for students who want to participate in programs. "Grants are tough, and as a nonprofit, we try to keep up. It's great for the community to give back, donate, and pay for youth in town to attend programs," Namen said. "There are really talented youth, and it is amazing to see what they can do with the support from people in town."

In the organization's eyes, the fundraiser serves a bigger purpose. The community helps support the youth arts and these students receive a healthy outlet for expression.

The Lebanon Historical Society will hold its Outdoor Antique Show on the Lebanon Green Saturday, Sept. 30, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Outdoor Antique Show Returns to Lebanon

Fall colors, antiques, chowder and pie will return to the Lebanon Green later this month as the Lebanon Historical Society celebrates 56 years of its Outdoor Antique Show. The show will be open from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 30.

Up to 60 dealers will offer antiques and collectibles to buyers who come from around the state and throughout southern New England. The event started in 1966 as a money-making effort to fund society programs and, eventually, to help pay for the land needed to build a museum. Today, the Antique Show is still the Historical Society's largest and most important fundraising event, with proceeds supporting school programs, exhibits and historical presentations. Some dealers have been participating for many years, but new-to-the-field dealers are added every year. Visitors can expect to find everything from 19th century furniture to vintage tools and from traditional pottery to textiles, glassware and jewelry.

Admission is $8. Lunch and snacks will be available for purchase all day, including homemade chowders, sandwiches, grilled burgers and dogs, and slices of homemade pie. Parking is free and the event goes on rain or shine.

For more information, contact the Lebanon Historical Society at 860-642-6579 or museum@historyoflebanon.org, or visit www.historyoflebanon.org.

Dealer spaces are still available; cost is $90 for a 20' x 24' space. Call 860-423-8876 or 860-642-6579 to reserve a space.

Stream Habitat Volunteer Training

The Salmon and Eightmile River watershed groups, working with the Connecticut River Watch Program, are hosting a Training Program for Volunteers on biological stream assessments.

Collectively, the Salmon and Eightmile River watersheds cover over 200 square miles and include the towns of Bolton, Colchester, Columbia, East Haddam, East Hampton, East Lyme, Glastonbury, Haddam, Hebron, Lebanon, Lyme, Marlborough and Salem.

The training program will be held Saturday, Sept. 9. The indoor workshop will be held at Burnham Brook Preserve, 2 Dolbia Hill Road (East), East Haddam, starting at 9 a.m. After the classroom portion, folks will head to Salmon River Picnic Area off Gulf Road in East Hampton for field work.

Attendees will learn to collect and identify stream insects that are good indicators of water quality and stream health. The state Department of Energy and Environmental Protection (DEEP) and the watershed groups will use the results to verify that local streams are meeting their aquatic habitat goals.

Registration is limited to 20 participants. This program is appropriate for high school-age and above. To register or for more information, contact Pat Young at salmonriverct@att.net or info@eightmileriver.org.

Glastonbury Art Show Returns This Weekend

Glastonbury Arts' annual "On the Green" Fine Art & Craft Show will take place Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 9 and 10, from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. both days, on the Hubbard Green in Glastonbury.

The event is rain or shine, and will feature free admission and free parking, a food court, live music, poetry and book readings, and, of course, art.

One hundred artists and artisans from states throughout the northeast and down to Florida will participate this year, offering a selection of realistic and abstract art in oil, watercolor, pastel, photography, graphics, drawing, mixed media and sculpture. Handmade crafts will include jewelry as well as works in clay, metal, glass, fiber, and wood. The show will feature returning exhibitors as well as new ones. Look for a special exhibition near the Museum on Hubbard Green that features the art of Glastonbury Arts' member artists.

The On the Green show is the signature event of Glastonbury Arts, a nonprofit organization.

"Our show is a highlight of the fall schedule thanks to our generous business sponsors, stalwart volunteers, an amazing group of talented exhibitors, and an appreciative audience of show patrons who come to browse and buy from the many exhibitors who participate in the show," said On the Green chair Kathy Simmons.

Fife & Drum Corps Prepares for Local Muster

By Michael Sinkewicz

For generations, the Marlborough Jr. Ancient Fife & Drum Corps has crisscrossed New England, showcasing its talents in numerous parades and ceremonies.

Now, after a years-long hiatus, the group will host its own muster – a significant milestone in the revitalization of the proud organization. Marlborough is hosting the muster at Blish Park on Saturday, Sept. 16., which will feature 12 corps from Connecticut and neighboring states.

“That’s the big event,” said the corps’ director, Wayne Seidel.

The Marlborough Juniors have been around since 1964; this will be the 45th muster the group has hosted, and the first since 2010. Essentially, a muster is a collection fife & drum corps playing for each other. There’s a short parade that leads into the muster itself, where each corps performs.

“It’s not competitive, it’s more about the spirit and camaraderie of the ancient style of fifing and drumming,” he said.

On Friday, Sept. 15, many out-of-state corps will converge on Marlborough and setup camp at the park. In the past, groups from as far away as Switzerland have attended local musters, and hospitality is always a priority.

That evening, beginning at 6:30 p.m., a small opening performance called a “tattoo” takes place, led by the hosting corps. Then there’s jollification, or jamming; everyone plays common music from the pages of history.

At 11 a.m. on Saturday, the parade embarks from Pettengill Road, proceeding onto N. Main Street, and turning onto Lake Road, before arriving at the park.

“We want the public to come out and enjoy and watch a wide array of drum corps parade down the road,” Seidel expressed.

Hosting a muster is emblematic of the group’s rejuvenation. The Corps went dormant for a few years following its last muster due to a lack of membership, but was reestablished in 2016. Membership grew from a handful of residents — whose ages range from 8-18 — to its current enrollment of 15.

“Now we’re in a position to host a muster again,” Seidel said.

Alexa Odoy, 17, has been in the corps for four years and served as the drum sergeant for the last two. She plays percussion for the RHAM High School band, but wanted to apart of a dedicated marching unit, which led her to the fife and drum corps. Now, she oversees the drum line.

“I love it,” she said outside Marlborough Congregational Church, where the group rehearses during the summer. “It’s my favorite thing.”

Recently, the corps performed at Marlborough Day and worked an information booth. Their trips take them to New York and Vermont; in 2022, the group went to Provincetown in Cape Cod for a July 4th parade.

But the prospect of hosting their own event is thrilling.

“I think it’s really just exciting,” Odoy said. “I’m not very stressed.”

In her mind, the corps represents a unique opportunity for young people to get involved with in their town.

“It’s this historic style of drumming but also a community history of playing tunes and doing all these fun things together,” she expressed.

The strong sense of community is an element that makes fife and drum corps special, she added. At large gatherings, jovial atmospheres often lead to collaboration and the preservation of traditions.

“Everyone will get together and jam,” Odoy said. “It’s great to learn from all the people who have been in since they were kids.”

Assistant Director Amy Limmer, whose daughter is “hooked” on the corps, emphasized the importance of sustaining the group moving forward.

“If you look years ago, you saw fife and drum corps everywhere,” she said. “They’re not as prevalent as they used to be, but they’re still there and a lot of parades want that.”

She continued, “This has such a rich tradition and history. It’s important and if this is gone, we lose a big part of history that’s hard to get back.”

As the kids marched around the church parking lot, it was evident that the style and sound of the unit was different than a standard marching band. The group uses rope-tension drums that are made in the old style.

The dedication of the members was also on display during the rehearsal. Limmer’s daughter proudly wore a shirt with the phrase “eat, sleep, fife.” Much of the group’s recruitment comes from current members spreading the word around town, as well.

Sisters Fallon and Charlotte Morganson, ages 12 and 13 respectively, have been a part of the group for around a month, and have already participated in a few events. They also have two additional siblings involved with the group.

Charlotte, who plays drums, explained that she actually heard about the corps from Odoy, and decided to join. She’s happy to be taking part of the upcoming muster.

“I’m really excited for our town to have their

The Marlborough Jr. Ancient Fife & Drum Corps will host a muster at Blish Park in September. It will be the first the group has hosted since 2010.

first muster in a really long time,” she said.

Fallon expressed that the group offers an opportunity to interact with people outside of school.

“It just helps with a lot of things,” she asserted.

One of the major benefits of the group, Limmer added, is that members certainly learn a lot, but more importantly, “they make friends.”

Seidel stated that each member learns how to perform, be a part of a team, operate under pressure, how to march and how to play their instruments; they all travel together and visit historical places.

“They have fun,” he emphasized.

Seidel was in the corps when he was a kid and wound up instructing the group for about 11 years. He’s currently the business manager of an adult group, the Colchester Continentals; he previously directed the group for 15 years. Seidel has directed the junior corps in Marlborough since launching it again in 2016.

“There is a lot of work that goes into putting on a muster,” he said, listing some of the items on the checklist: getting support from the town, holding muster committee meetings, reaching out to the drum corps community, arranging shuttle buses to get groups to the start of the parade and arranging meals to feed each guest — all in one weekend.

Many of the groups visiting next week will be from Connecticut — “the epicenter of fifing and drumming.” The headquarters for the Company of Fifers & Drummers is in Ivoryton.

For Seidel, it’s hard to accumulate the plethora of skills, experiences and friendships that you get with a drum corps.

“Year after year, I see so much growth in the kids that participate in this,” he said. “It’s really something else. They get so much out of it — they form lifelong friendships, they form self-confidence. I see kids come into the group one way and leave as different young adults.”

The growth is especially noticeable when a member sticks with the group until they’re 17 or 18 years old.

“It’s really something else to watch that progression occur,” he said. “It makes it worth it for me. It’s a valuable use of my time for sure.”

The progression of the group wouldn’t be possible without the dedication from parents, as well.

“I’m very fortunate that I’ve got a group of parents that is really supportive and helping to make it happen,” Seidel said.

GOP Primary Next Week

By Michael Sinkewicz

Next week will bring a rarity to Marlborough – a local Republican primary.

Voting will take place Tuesday, Sept. 12, from 6 a.m.-8 p.m. at the Elmer Thienes Mary Hall Elementary School Community Room, located at 25 School Drive.

The ballot includes Joe Askar, Louise Concodello, and Mike Nastro as Republican Town Committee-endorsed candidates for Board of Selectmen.

Sue Stolfi and Chris Barella petitioned themselves as additional candidates, after fulfilling the signature requirements to force a primary; the petition was validated by the town clerk and the Republican registrar of voters.

In addition, Louise Concodello is on the ballot for the Board of Education, joined by Patrick Pabouet, chairman of the RTC. Those two committee-endorsed candidates will be challenged by Kerri Barella and Amy Kuhrt.

Both Stolfi and Kerri Barella are currently on the Independent Party Slate Committee ticket, a third line added to this year's November ballot. If they are successful next week, they would run as officially endorsed Republican candidates instead.

Overall, three selectmen and two school board winners will advance to the municipal election.

The decision to force a primary election comes after the Independent Committee — of which Stolfi is a founding member — created a third-line on the ballot, allowing registered Republicans, or any registered resident, to run essentially as independent candidates. Previously, Stolfi stated that running on the “C” row would’ve “watered down the votes.”

This week, Pabouet told the Rivereast that the situation is “confusing.”

“Republicans don’t know who they’re supposed to vote for,” he said. “We’re trying to get people to vote for the endorsed slate.”

He added that those candidates are “deserving to move forward.”

The RTC-endorsed candidates were voted upon at a caucus in July by around 40 individuals.

While confusing, he expressed that the existence of a Primary is “great for the town.”

Judy Kelly, vice chair of the RTC, previously called the Primary a “historic moment.”

In a joint statement provided to the Rivereast, the four candidates who petitioned themselves onto the ballot stated that it is “crucial that the right people are elected” at the upcoming primary.

“Susan, Chris, Kerri and Amy would like to see change,” the statement reads. “Doing the same thing over and over and getting the same results is the definition of insanity.”

It concludes, “The four of us have invested interest in our town and our schools as we have school aged children. We commit to serving for many years to come, not just one more term.”

During a phone call, Stolfi said the candidates are out door-knocking and campaigning on social media.

“We’re happy with what we’re doing,” she said. Regarding the RTC chairman’s comments, she expressed, “I totally respect his perspective.”

Ken Hjulstrom, a founding member of the Independent Committee, has previously pushed back against Republicans “crying foul,” arguing that it was “inconsistent with their previous actions.”

In his own statement to the Rivereast, he said “fixing our flawed charter is definitely on my radar for next year.”

“Seeing that all three of the currently endorsed Republican candidates for Board of Selectmen played an integral role in creating and presenting the charter to the voters in November 2021, I have concerns about their ability to thoughtfully and competently look out for our best interests going forward.”

He added that while he was not a “key player” in requesting a primary, “I have no problem with providing an opportunity for the over 1,200 registered Republican voters in town to have a final say in their preferred candidates.”

Hjulstrom again defended the merit of a primary and the motivations behind it, saying RTC critics are the same individuals who “had no problem failing to honor the caucus results in 2022 for the Board of Selectmen special election when Louise Concodello petitioned herself onto the ballot, challenging the endorsed Republican candidate.”

“Definitely an obvious case of hypocrisy,” he stated.

The Independent Party Slate Committee – which has no stake in the primary – is looking for one of its candidates on the November ticket to receive 1% of the total vote, which would establish the committee as an official political party moving forward.

Lieutenant Governor Pays Visit to Cragin

By John Leavenworth

This past Tuesday, Cragin Memorial Library was visited by Lt. Gov. Susan Bysiewicz, in celebration of three events – National Library Card Sign-Up Month, National Read a Book Day on Sept. 6, and International Literacy Day on Sept. 8.

Bysiewicz, who was joined by state and town dignitaries, spoke on the front lawn of the library about the importance of reading and libraries.

On reading, she said, “Books have the power to transport us to new worlds, introduce us to new people and perspectives that we may never get to encounter in life.”

“Reading fosters empathy, critical thinking and interactional freedom; values that are fundamental to the free, diverse and democratic society,” she said.

Bysiewicz grew up in a family full of librarians, and is an avid reader herself, she said.

Bysiewicz’s mother, Shirley Raissi Bysiewicz, “was the UConn Law Library director in 1972. Her aunt, Ann Luddy, was a librarian at the Hartford County Bar Association library at the Hartford Superior Court. And, her cousin, Christine Luddy Bell, was a librarian at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Medical Library,” her office said in a statement.

In recent years, libraries and schools across the country have seen a rise in book bans and censorship of school material, including Cragin, where a book about the popular drag queen RuPaul Andre Charles was removed from the shelf following a request from First Selectman Andreas Bisbikos.

The book, titled Who is RuPaul?, was part of a larger Who is? and Who was? series of nonfiction books for children by Penguin Books.

On the incident, Bysiewicz said, “A society that bans books sows division and mistrust.”

On the other hand, she added, “a society that celebrates books” fosters a sense of community and trust.

Next to talk at the small wood podium was Library Director Kate Byroade, who also spoke on the importance of reading.

She said that while reading is for educational purposes, it is also “for enrichment and entertainment.”

“If you’ve had a hard day and you can go home and read a wonderful book that takes you away from your troubles, that’s fantastic,” she said.

State Librarian Deborah Schander followed, simply adding that anyone interested in visiting their local library should “come on in.”

Next to speak was state Rep. Mark DeCaprio (R-48), who spoke about an encounter he had with a maintenance worker who could not read.

As a Department of Energy & Environmental Protection employee, DeCaprio said he once “responded to an oil spill in the basement of a church,” in a Connecticut city he would not name.

Discussing a clean-up procedure for the spill, he told the maintenance man, “I could bring you some things to read and you could [look them over].”

“That’s not going to help me,” the man said.

DeCaprio then asked the man what he meant by this.

The man told him, “Well, I can’t read.”

“That really struck me, you know, as a person,” DeCaprio said.

Governor Susan Bysiewicz, selectman Rosemary Coyle, State Librarian Deborah Schander, and Town Clerk Gayle Furman.

DeCaprio said that following the encounter, he “went back to visit the man a number of times in an effort to help him.”

On reading, he added, “This is why it’s so important.”

First Selectman Andreas Bisbikos, who moved to the U.S. as a young boy from Greece, spoke on the importance of having a library for the purpose of providing the resources for learning a new language and the history of a given country – a country that, in the case of the United States, “has become my home,” he said.

Selectman Rosemary Coyle and Town Clerk

Gayle Furman also spoke.

Cragin Memorial was chosen for the event “in consultation with the Connecticut Library Association because of the high-quality services they provide to Colchester residents, the professionalism of their staff, and their demonstrated commitment to preserving their patrons’ freedom to access information representing and inclusive of all walks of life,” said Bysiewicz’s office.

Bysiewicz’s senior advisor, Joseph Carvalho, reached out to Byroade through an email last Thursday to organize the visit.

DTC Fundraiser

Lt. Gov. Susan Bysiewicz and the Coyle family will co-host an outdoor reception to benefit the Colchester Democratic Town Committee and the Democratic candidates running for office in November on Sunday, Sept. 10, from 3-5 p.m., at 23 Deer Run Drive. All are welcome.

This is a time to meet the candidates running for office or become more involved in the upcoming campaign season, while enjoying food and drink. Special guests include Congressman Joe Courtney and state Sen. Norm Needleman (D-33).

The suggested contribution is $35-$100, though all contributions are accepted. For planning purposes, advanced ticket purchase at secure.anedot.com/colchesterdemocrats/ donate is preferred, but same day arrivals are also welcome.

Call 860-465-7909 for more information.

Martino Set to Make Mark at Bryant

By Josh Howard

Bacon Academy track and field head coach Steve Browning referred to 2023 graduate Jake Martino as “a wonderful athlete.”

Martino now takes his array of athletic talents to the next level where he is joining the track and field team at Bryant University in Rhode Island.

“Personally for me, I want to go into business and it seems like the place to be. It’s a lot of awesome, like-minded people and education was the biggest aspect of my decision,” said Martino, who will major in business with a focus on sales.

Martino’s time at Bacon Academy was littered with accomplishments, including an Outdoor Track and Field Class M state championship in the discus as a junior in the spring of 2022.

As a senior, he won an Eastern Connecticut Conference (ECC) championship in the shot put during the indoor winter season and then captured a state championship in the shot put, along with being the runner-up in the discus and fifth place in the javelin at the Class M championship during spring’s outdoor season.

Along with earning plenty of hardware in the throwing events, Martino was also part of several winning relay teams and was the team’s best hurdler this past season, winning multiple individual events throughout the season.

Browning said Martino’s abilities in the field and on the track gave the Bobcats the edge in many meets, allowing them to defeat conference rivals in regular season meets during both the indoor and outdoor seasons.

“We will definitely miss him next year; he is very much a student of the sport in a technical sense and he spent extra time practicing and seeks out advice from others,” added Browning. “He’ll help the other kids too -- they emulated

Jake. He was on the top of his game and his attitude influenced the rest of the kids on the team.”

During his sophomore and junior years, Martino showcased his versatility in the sport by competing in the decathlon at the CIAC Spring State Championships, finishing seventh and eighth overall, respectively.

Martino said that training and competing in the decathlon is the ultimate test for track and field athletes because it involves all the skills needed.

After growing up in Colchester his entire life, Martino now primarily focuses on throwing at Bryant where he joins the Division I program that competes in the America East Conference.

The Bulldogs of Bryant have been headed by director Mitchell Switzer and Martino said one of the main reasons he chose the school is because of the stability of the program.

“When I took my official visit here, the guys there were super cool,” stated Martino, who recently moved to Smithfield, R.I., to start school. “I’ve been loving it. It’s a great community to be around; everyone is hard working and the team is super welcoming.”

The university has a state-of-the-art training facility for its athletes, which is music to the ears of Martino, who said the key to his success in high school was the time spent training in the gym.

“Specifically for track and field, it shows if you don’t train. It’s a numbers sport, if you miss workout out or don’t put in the time, it will show with the numbers,” stated Martino, who added that track and field has provided him routine. “A lot of what it taught me was staying consistent and working hard every day. It’s a lot easier to do everything the same every single day and keep grinding.”

Jake Martino, a state champion thrower on the track and field team at Bacon Academy, will join the Division I Bryant Bulldogs in Rhode Island.

He added that the university’s location is ideal as well, just far enough away for a “change of scenery” yet close enough to his childhood town, where he said he will miss his friends and credited the teachers at Bacon for shaping him into the student he has become.

However, he noted he is “loving life right now” and is ready for the next challenge.

“I’ve just been hitting workouts every day and just trying to improve every single day,” he added. “I really like the competition here, the guys I’ve met are crazy hard workers.”

Youth Football Recap

The Colchester Cougars youth football squads were in action last weekend. Here is how they fared:

Seniors: Defeated the Montville Wolves, 30-0, to move to 2-0 on the season. The Cougars had touchdown runs by Noah Garvie, Mason Howard, Xaden Medina and Vinny Arrigoni. Extra point kicks were made by Mason Howard. The defense was able to hold Montville to zero points thanks to two fumble recoveries and an interception by Noah Garvie. Strong tackles were also made by Brendan Kastrup, Dominic Helm, Adam Bigelow and Cason Carpenter.

Juniors: Lost to Montville. The offense, led by QB Nik Ibrahim, RB Jakob Sheehan and center Bo Thody, had some great drives but came up a little short. The team will play Windham this Sunday.

Micros: Beat Montville, 20-0. The Cougars displayed a balanced offensive and defensive effort, with rushing touchdowns by Brendan Hopkins and Ty Corrado, a passing touchdown from Ty Carraro to Travis Clark, and a defense anchored by Sam Gorman, Parker Chaplinsky, and a host of other defensive linemen.

PeeWee: Lost to Groton, 26-0. Groton added a late first-half touchdown to bring the score to 20-0 going into the break. A resurgent Cougars defense allowed only one touchdown during the second half. The tough running of Sullivan King, behind a determined but undersized line of Ryker Matthews, Kash Parekh, Jay Parekh and Bryce Besse pushed Groton down the field before time expired. The PeeWee squad plays Ledyard this weekend.

Local Music Shop's 40th Anniversary

By London Brazal

A beloved local music shop marked a significant milestone, reaching 40 years of providing musical lessons, sheet music, and instrumental repairs.

The Conn Valley School of Music and Dance on Main Street has been a source of musical inspiration and offers several services. Founded in 1983 by David and Ronna Kuzminski, the studio became a place for participants to explore, learn, and connect with their craft.

When the couple started, they set boundaries to make sure they didn't infringe on each other's responsibilities. "Ronna managed the desk during the day. She taught dance when I had the music side, and life was good," Kuzminski said.

Kuzminski attended Berklee College of Music and graduated from the Hartford Conservatory, where he taught for 15 years. Before, Kuzminski gave lessons from his house. When he purchased the shop, many of his coworkers from the Conservatory became member teachers.

When he was young, Kuzminski became interested in the guitar and began taking lessons. Though he studied music in school, his father questioned, "What are you going to do for your day job?" Kuzminski worked part-time for Portland, and when he transitioned into full-time, teaching music became an evening gig.

Along with teaching, Kuzminski performed locally with the Jason Smith Quintet. The band would play private shows, and one gig a month became six gigs a week. At one point, they played at 150 weddings a year.

When he first bought the shop, Kuzminski dreamed of being the next Guitar Center. "You learn very quickly what you can't do. But this allowed us to focus on the students," Kuzminski said. At the business' peak, they had about 12 teachers. Today, they offer private instruction for percussion, piano, string, voice, guitar, and woodwinds.

Over the years, Kuzminski saw many changes. "From a retail standpoint, the brick-and-mortar businesses are competing with online sales," Kuzminski reflected. The shop continues to handle sheet music, classes, and repairs while servicing local school systems. The shop was lucky to survive Covid as they were completely shut down for three months. "Covid put a tremendous strain on the business. I am lucky to own the building, or else that would not have been the case."

Two years ago, Kuzminski's wife Ronna passed away after a longtime battle with Parkinson's disease. She taught dance lessons at the shop to students of all ages for 30 years. In her memory, the shop offers a $500 scholarship to Portland High School students attending a school in pursuit of a career in dance, music or the arts. Alicia Currier, who worked under Ronna, took on the dance portion of the business. She teaches all ages in her program, Dance with Miss Alicia.

Kuzminski said he plans on retiring from the town in January, after 50 years. The Portland native is ready and excited to focus his energy at the shop. His lessons are beginner-based, and Kuzminski enjoys traditional jazz and R&B.

In newer renovations, Kuzminski added another lesson space and built a podcast studio. The professionally-equipped podcast studio hosts two shows and is available to rent. Drumming instructor John Peckman has a show with about 128 episodes. Some special guests included Bernard Purdie, who played for James Brown, and Joe Bouchard, who played for Blue Öyster Cult. The podcasts are available on every podcast platform. Peckman has also aired his through Comcast in Cromwell.

Kuzminski hosts a podcast called "Careers You Didn't Know About," which explores the future of the water and wastewater industry. For the last year and a half, Kuzminski produced about 66 episodes. The equipment in the studio includes microphones, video cameras, a green screen, an audio mixer, and more.

"The podcast industry is growing, yet it's non-demanding. Nobody has to commit to a podcast, but lots of people listen to them now," said Kuzminski. After retirement, Kuzminski also wants to take his podcast on the road and have a mobile podcast studio.

After 40 years of business, Kuzminski said he and his fellow teachers wanted to thank the community for offering strong support.

"People continue to tell us, 'We don't know what we would do without you,'" said Kuzminski. The sentiment typically follows when parents do something as simple as picking up a reed for a clarinet. "There is a large sense of satisfaction knowing people still need us and that people are continuing music."

Schools Select District Educator of the Year

For the first time in recent memory, Portland Public Schools has named a district Educator of the Year. For the 2023-24 school year, Portland middle and high school music teacher Samuel "Sam" Tucker has been awarded this recognition and will go on this fall to represent Portland as the district's candidate for the state's annual Connecticut State Teacher of the Year honor.

Through a recent, shared effort by the teachers' union and district leadership team, the Educator of the Year program relaunched this past spring in Portland after many years of dormancy. Throughout May, members of the school community, including students, families and other teachers, were invited through an open online process to nominate outstanding educators for the award.

After nominations closed, a selection committee composed of teachers, administrators, Board of Education members, and other key stakeholders met to review nominations and select a winner. That winner, Tucker, was unveiled during the district's annual convocation ceremony Friday, Aug. 25.

Superintendent of Schools Charles Britton said he feels "delighted" to have resumed the program, which he sees as an "outstanding honor" for those nominated and for the individual named as Educator of the Year.

Britton said "It is important for us all to celebrate instructional excellence." An excellence that, he added, "there is no shortage [of] in Portland."

Tucker is entering his 21st year of teaching and his 12th year as a member of Portland Public Schools. He currently serves as Director of the Secondary Chorus Program in addition to teaching seventh grade music and AP/UConn ECE Music Theory, a college credit bearing course for PHS upperclassmen.

For Tucker, "Being a teacher requires a lot – time, effort, and emotional investment. We do this work without intent to be recognized, but being recognized feels amazing!" He said that, as he sees it, "It's not only validating for me personally, but it's also a validation for all those who work alongside me and that help me to be my best for kids."

As part of his selection as the district's Educator of the Year, Tucker now has the chance to compete against other district winners for the title of Connecticut State Teacher of the Year.

When asked what sets him apart from others, Tucker thought hard for a moment before humbly responding, "Empathy. I know what it's like to be uncomfortable and nervous and unsure. When I see students struggling with things like risk-taking and stepping out of their comfort zones, I feel for them and alongside them. I know that they know I see them as individuals of incredible potential, and that helps them feel more comfortable trying new things."

For Britton, Tucker is a teacher who "brings a little bit of magic into every lesson. Kids feel genuinely excited when learning under Mr. Tucker, and he gives them the confidence to be their best."

Tucker previously attended Boston University and Bridgewater State University, where he earned undergraduate and graduate degrees in the fields of music and music education. He currently resides in Chester with his wife Elizabeth, daughter Susannah, and three family felines.

When asked what he hopes students feel or remember about him most, Tucker offered this: "I hope that they remember feeling pushed to try new things and safe enough with me and others in our class to do just that. I hope they have the courage and the comfort to fail because that's what success requires and is all about."

Brainerd Place is designed to bring Portland more residential options and retail space, along with the preservation of the historic buildings.

Garden Project Winners Announced

Eight Main Street Portland businesses took top honors in the first Portland Village District Street Garden Project and were recognized during the summer concert series in Riverfront Park on Aug. 22.

The tropical oasis installed at PegArch Architecture and Design in partnership with Tropical CT secured this year’s Portland’s Choice Award with their ingenious container gardens situated in the small storefront footprint. They also took home first place in the container garden category.

Additional Main Street businesses received the following awards:

- In-Ground Garden: First place: Portland Memorial Funeral Home, 231 Main St.; second place: Concentric Brewing Co., 91 Main St.

- Window box: First place: Bud’s Café, 158 Main St.; second place: The Portland Ale House, 188 Main St.

- Container: First place: PegArch Architecture and Design in partnership with Tropical CT, 236 Main Street; second place: Savvy Swap Consignment in partnership with Lily Rose Gardens, 275 Main St.

- Hanging Basket: First place: Revolution Properties LLC, 280 Main St.; second place: Connecticut Valley School of Music and Dance, 226 Main St.

Twenty-two businesses decorated their Main Street storefronts – either in containers, in-ground, in window boxes or hanging baskets – in May and June. In early July, volunteer judges from both the Portland River Valley Garden Club and the Portland Economic Development Commission walked and viewed the gardens on display to help choose the 2023 winners. Portland residents also had the opportunity to vote for the Portland’s Choice Award in the Portland Village District Street Garden Project between July 2-15 – either in person or online via Facebook. More than 200 individuals voted.

“We were overwhelmed by the incredible creativity and Portland pride that our Main Street businesses displayed as the summer season kicked off,” said Jen McGuinness, secretary from the Portland River Valley Garden Club (PRVGC). “We hope to expand beyond Main Street next year and that our businesses on Route 66 will join in the fun!”

A member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Connecticut, Inc., PRVGC was formed in 1959 in Portland. The club will celebrate its 65th year in June 2024. The garden club maintains various gardens around town, keeping organic gardening practices in mind. The club said it aims to educate the public on conservation issues, be a partner in the beautification of the Town of Portland, and be active participants in town events.

More information on the Street Garden Project and PRVGC can be found at portland-river-valley-garden-club.blogspot.com.

“PET OF THE WEEK”

Minnie, 7 months, is sweet natured, fun-loving and beautiful. She is filled to the brim with love and affection. However, she can be quirky and wants to be loved on her terms. For this reason, she would be best in a home with older children and adults. Minnie is very social and loves to interact with people and other cats. Her favorite toys are wand toys, small stuffed animals and laser toys.

Keeley, 5 months, shows affection by asking for pets, flopping over to get some extra belly rubs or rub against your side. She is still not completely trusting after being left on her own and does not like carriers or to be picked up yet. An ideal family for her would be patient in allowing her to continue her journey towards trust. She’s come a long way and now enjoys company with people she knows and will bring lots of joy and sweetness to her new family.

Protecting Our Lake

To the Editor:

The East Hampton Conservation and Lake Commission has been diligently working to protect our lake and keep it blue. The town has put in an aeration system and other treatments in order to control cyanobacteria growth. Also, the town has been addressing those areas in our watershed where water goes directly into the lake without being purified by going into the ground. The Lake Commission is constantly looking at innovative ways to keep the lake blue. And it seems to be working.

I, Jack Solomon, am Vice Chairman of the Conservation and Lake Commission. This note is written by me as a citizen of East Hampton hoping that we will all work to make our lake better.

Dr. Jack Solomon – East Hampton

Look for Our Insert!

To the Editor:

The Portland Democratic Town Committee is excited to have our Board of Selectmen and Board of Education candidate flier as an insert in this week's Rivereast. Please look for it with the other advertisement inserts; it is blue and easy to spot.

After reading each candidate's bio you can find more information on our website, Portlandctdtc.com; on Facebook at Portland Democratic Committee; or by email at PortlandCT-DTC@gmail.com.

Thank you for taking the time to read our flier. We are proud of the immense experience our candidates have to share with our community.

Portland Democratic Town Committee

For All East Hampton

To the Editor:

There are few places in Connecticut with as much character as East Hampton. For a small town relatively far from a major highway, Belltown has cultivated a rich history, a growing modern community, and a bright future.

Much of that character is the result of people who live here. There are some in town who can trace their family roots in East Hampton back centuries. Others are just finding their way here recently, moving in for excellent schools and quality of life.

Inevitably, the old guard is going to clash with the new wave. This happens most frequently – as these brouhahas now always do – on social media, especially East Hampton-specific Facebook pages. While healthy discourse is a good thing, comments and responses often dovetail away from mere differences of opinion and into insults and trolling.

Regardless of Facebook fighting, everyone who lives in East Hampton deserves a government and school system dedicated to serving everyone. Whether a family has lived in East Hampton for 150 years or 15 days, we are all taxpayers contributing to the common good.

That's one of the reasons why I'm proud to be a member of the Democratic ticket. People moving to town need places to live, and we support smart and responsible growth. Residents share and sustain resources, and we are stewards of the environment and infrastructure. Our schools must be prepared for students of all needs and abilities, and we support a strong, competitive education system.

It's a difficult balance, to be sure. We are up to the challenge, with Democrats up and down the ballot devoted to responsible governing for all East Hampton residents. As our community grows and celebrates its roots, we offer excellent leadership to all.

Vote Row A on Nov. 7.

Sincerely,
Matt Engelhardt
Candidate for East Hampton
Board of Education

Proven Dedication

To the Editor:

With more than 10 years of community service donated to the Town of Marlborough, Susan Stolfi is the perfect candidate for BOS. One of the most impressive traits Sue exhibits is her willingness to talk to any member of the community one on one. This gives her an advantage to really get to the bottom of what exactly residents feel Marlborough needs. She's always willing to meet anyone for coffee and collaborate ideas. If you want to know something, just ask her.

Sue is strong, determined and transparent which is why I'm voting for her.

Ashley Murray – Marlborough

We Need Your Vote!

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, Sept. 12, Marlborough Republicans will be voting all day, 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., at the Marlborough Elementary School during a Republican primary. We will be voting for three candidates for Board of Selectmen and two candidates for the Marlborough Board of Education.

The Marlborough Republican Town Committee endorsed the following candidates at their July caucus. The endorsed candidates for Board of Selectmen are: Joe Askar, Louise Concodello and Mike Nastri. The endorsed candidates for the Board of Education are: Louise Concodello and Patrick Pabouet.

All our candidates are longtime residents with grown children, some blessed with beautiful grandchildren. They have all served and are still serving on many different boards and commissions and would like to continue their service to our town. Please join me on Sept. 12 and vote for our candidates.

Sincerely,
Louise Concodello – Marlborough

Note: Concodello is a member of the Marlborough Board of Education, as well as the Parks & Recreation, Lake Advisory and Nature Trails commissions, but she said she is speaking as an individual.

Friends of Portland Library

Dear Portland Friends and Neighbors:

As summer winds down, now seems like the perfect moment to remind you of the critical role that the Friends of the Portland Library play in funding some of our most beloved library services and programs, including the youth, teen, and adult Summer Reading programs that inspired hundreds of Portland residents to read this summer.

The Friends of the Portland Library is a volunteer-based, nonprofit organization that supports the Portland Library in providing quality library service to our community. The Friends raise funds through membership dues, book sales, and fundraising events. These funds are used to purchase materials for the library, and to sponsor many library programs that our municipal budget can't accommodate, including museum passes, Summer Reading, children and teen programs, art exhibitions, the Books for Babies and 1,000 Books Before Kindergarten programs, and many more.

Many towns have Friends organizations, but not all Friends organizations are like ours here in Portland. In Portland we are blessed to have a group of Friends who are not only active and hard-working, but are also some of the most cre-

Thank You to Public Works

To the Editor:

I recently sent an electronic message to East Hampton Public Works about the numerous pot holes at the start of Comstock Bridge Road that were growing in number and size. Rather than just filling them, it seems a better repair was done with squaring off the asphalt repair work making the ride smoother, and it appears may be a better fix to prevent the potholes from reemerging.

Thank you, East Hampton Public Works, for your responsiveness and the repairs which will be appreciated by many who travel in this area.

Experience and Expertise

Dear Portland Residents:

My name is Jim Tripp and I am running for election to the Portland Board of Selectmen.

This week we have included a flyer in the Rivereast News Bulletin that provides information on all the democratic candidates for Board of Selectmen and Board of Education. I am proud to be running on a ticket with a team that has experience and expertise associated with the positions for which they are running.

The Board of Selectmen candidates on our ticket are Andrea Alfano, Jillian Crawford, John Dillon, and me. We each bring different experience and expertise that will serve the Town of Portland well. This combined experience includes decades of business, public sector, and public service.

We are also fortunate to have Board of Education candidates with extensive experience. Our incumbent candidates on the ballot are Laurel Steinhauser, Meg Scata, Kim Nagy-Maruschock, and Sarah Spear. These candidates bring a wealth of experience and expertise to the Board of Education. This includes service as Board of Education Chairperson, leadership on the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education (CABE), and decades of experience in the field of education.

Please take a moment to review the flyer we have included in the Rivereast News Bulletin for additional candidate information.

Sincerely,
James K. Tripp – Portland
Candidate for Board of Selectmen

Wants to Continue

Dear Portland Voters:

My name is Sarah Spear and I am running for Portland's Board of Education. I currently serve on the BOE and ask that you elect me to continue stewarding our public schools. Our district is in the midst of overhauling our school facilities so electing incumbents already involved in this process is essential to successful project completion.

I own Empowered Together, a Portland-based business that supports families affected by disability. Previously, I led marketing and operations at Love146 in New Haven. I also served as executive director of a startup program in St. Louis and as CEO of a healthtech company in India. In each of these roles, I've ensured the right people and resources were in place to build sustainable organizations. This is the real-world experience I bring to our BOE, providing oversight so that our kids receive the education they deserve.

My husband, John, and I moved to Portland seven years ago, after John retired from the Air Force. We are grateful to live in Portland, where our two children receive excellent public school educations and are active in our town's youth sports and activities. As a member of the Board of Education, I seek to enable this kind of positive experience for all our students.

I serve on the board's Personnel Committee and as a liaison to the schools' Equity and Inclusion Coalition. My professional roles give me perspective on hiring and retaining top personnel in Portland Public Schools. Further, my experience in disability advocacy provides me with a holistic approach to equity and inclusion.

To learn more about me and other candidates in this year's election, please see the flyer in this week's Rivereast. I look forward to continuing my service to Portland Public Schools and ask for your vote Nov. 7.

Sincerely,
Sarah Spear – Portland
Note: Spear is a member of the Portland Board of Education, but said she is speaking as an individual.

Supports Stolfi

To Marlborough Republicans:

I have known Susan Stolfi for a very long time; I have yet to meet someone more impassioned about doing what is right instead of doing what is easy. Sue is a dedicated, engaged mother and business professional whose passions have developed over the years into closing partisan gaps for the good of our town and our future, not widening them as some may say.

At a time in which 'politics' as a word creates controversy and lines we need our Board of Selectmen to look past those lines for the betterment of our community and growth of our beloved town of Marlborough. I believe and know, Susan Marie Stolfi is that leader we want to champion the balance of fiscal responsibility and inalienable rights that we all deserve. Get out and vote and make that a vote for Susan Stolfi on Sept. 12!

Dan Rapelye – Marlborough

It's About Governance

To the Editor:

There's an old adage I am reminded of this time of year: "From Labor Day until Election Day, it's about politics; after Labor Day, it's about governance." While campaigns now start far earlier than Labor Day, it remains true that, when all is said and done on Election Day, it is about governance.

To me, an important question to be asked of candidates seeking our votes is how will you work together with other elected officials on behalf of our community. Everyone will have their own ideas, but it should be possible to disagree without being disagreeable. As we have seen with the most recent budget process and vote, our community values civil discussion and consensus building; that is, good governance.

Respectfully,
Stan Soby – Colchester

Dedicated Individuals

To the Editor:

I am writing in support of Sue Stofi, Kerri Barella, Chris Barella and Amy Khurt running for office in Marlborough. It is refreshing to see individuals running who are dedicated to the good of our town and our children's future. Kerri is focused on doing what is best for our children and the community and currently serves as the vice chair on the Board of Education. Amy brings 18 years of teaching experience to the table running for Board of Education which would be a great asset. Sue has a strong political background and public service experience. She would be a great advocate for our town on the Board of Selectman – she would truly listen to the opinions and concerns of the community. Chris would bring a long a strong common-sense approach to the board.

Let's vote smart this election – voting for those who would make our town and schools better verses their own political agenda!

Erin Chiz – Marlborough

Garbage In, Garbage Out

To the Editor:

By the time you read this, Colchester's Board of Selectmen may have voted to approve a $10,000 bid for transparency software from ClearGov. I spoke in the Aug. 25 edition of the Rivereast about the need for "transparency" to be more than a political buzzword. I stand by that.

As verified by ClearGov, their transparency software relies extensively on the fiscal data of the town's accounting software, which in Colchester is Munis. With that, my concerns that ClearGov will have proper exports leading to transparent reports to the community are as follows:

Colchester still has an incomplete independent audit for fiscal year 2021-22. We can't verify the accuracy of expenditures, revenues, and undesignated funds. Our finance department has been overburdened due to high turnover, which resulted in hiring two temps for 60,000 dollars of taxpayer money and temporarily onboarding Colchester's former CFO as a consultant to help get the books in order. Further, members of the Board of Finance recently raised concerns over the accounting in the current fiscal cycle. These issues affect the accuracy and reliability of the data entered into Munis. And, if the data in Munis is not accurate and reliable, how reliable will ClearGov's transparency software be upon export from Munis?

In closing, transparency software alone will not create transparency – that has to start with leadership supporting the finance department so they're not overburdened. Complete audits to ensure the data is correct for export to any transparency software, including ClearGov. And it is fostering a culture of collaboration across the boards and departments that ends the current divisiveness. Right now, that's not happening. We all want transparency, but I say start there first to accomplish it.

Sincerely,
Scott Chapman – Colchester
Candidate, Colchester Board of Finance

A Vital Asset

Dear Colchester Friends and Neighbors:

The Colchester Senior Center is a vital asset here in our town. I've made many friends there since moving to Colchester ten years ago. The programs are wonderful, the staff is amazing, the services offered are varied and necessary but the building is in bad shape.

The town will need to go to referendum for another $1.5 million for a total of $11 million to complete the Senior Center building project. The good news is - although there has been increases in costs, there are additional monies available to offset much of that additional cost. The additional monies include: a state grant is $2.5 million, a generous donation to the Colchester Senior Center from the Bendas estate of $575,000 and an ARPA grant of $32,691. A total savings to the town of $3,107,691, leaves the amount the town would have to bond at $7,892,309. Because the town budgets for consistent bond payments we should not expect an increase in our taxes.

I urge you to vote 'yes' when the referendum is scheduled. Thank you.

Terry Brown – Colchester

comfort. But taking over for someone as beloved as Esslinger is somewhat difficult.

"It gets a little nervous sometimes from my side," he said, adding that he wants to "live up to what they're picturin'."

In approaching a new congregation, Hardee emphasized the importance of learning the culture and the way things are conducted — then considering what potential changes should be made.

"It's not the church of Brian," he expressed. "It wouldn't make sense for me to step in and colonize the place."

At the same time, change is unavoidable. Minor revisions have already been made, he said, but they're centered around feedback and conversations.

"My way is consensus," Hardee explained. "My way is when possible, to involve people in the discussion and try to get it so it's 'our' decision."

The congregation is an open and affirming church, which specifically means that it is accepting and embracing of the LGBTQ+ community; his congregation in West Avon had the same designation.

"That's important," Hardee said. "We'll repeat it at the beginning of worship services to make sure the message is clear."

Many parishioners attended a Pride Month event in town last June, and the church discusses additional initiatives that could be achieved in the future.

Hardee stated that Esslinger was deeply involved with AHM Youth & Family Services, and he hopes to continue. Overall, community engagement is a top priority, he said.

"Keeping that as a focus and trying to figure out what I can be doing to encourage involvement with that and enthusiasm for that is one of those conscious efforts," he said.

But he confirmed: "This church has been so good about what they're doing."

Hardee described himself as a "super quiet kid." Becoming a pastor, who of course is expected to be outgoing and even talkative, was a leap.

"For me, I can point to formative experiences

Conservative, Comforting Town

To the Editor:

When I was away serving my country I always longed for the conservative and comforting town of Colchester. I am so grateful that I have the opportunity to be in Colchester when First Selectman Andreas Bisbikos makes Colchester feel like the town I dreamed about. He deserves all of our support. He has experience, integrity and strength to do wonderful things for Colchester.

We must reelect First Selectman Andreas Bisbikos in November!

Pat Kelly – Colchester

Be the Change

To the Editor:

The right tears down the left. The left tears down the right. The ability to critically think is gone.

The polarization in this country is at a level not seen since the Civil War. We somehow believe that "our" candidate is going to solve the problem. Promises are made, you buy it, four years pass and nothing changes.

We complain that the other side is corrupt, and you're right. But...the corruption is also in our own homes, communities and minds and the change starts with us. We have an obligation as Americans to get this right for those behind us. Our children.

We are at a critical tipping point in this country and if we don't figure it out soon it's going to be those who come behind us that will pay.

Our children.

Neither side has our interests in mind; they're both corrupt. What's this week's divisive story? What emotions can we trigger? How do we perpetuate the hate today?

Your neighbor doesn't hate you, but your government does. We need to demand better; we need to do better.

Be a leader in your home and community. The change starts right here and we have an incredible opportunity right now to do it right, but that window is closing fast so audit yourself and be the change.

Chris Soule – East Hampton

that gave me things I needed to get to where I am now to be able to do it and enjoy it," he said.

Growing up, he was interested in the theatre program and would take part in "creative dramatics," which involved pretending to be a person or executing a scenario.

"It was huge, it got me to be able to be more outward expressive," Hardee expressed.

He also did speech and debate through high school.

Still, he enjoys his recharge time: reading, listening to music and walking with his dogs. He converts that energy when it's time to lead worship or teach confirmation class.

Hebron's newest pastor loves watching movies and TV shows. Two of his favorites include The Secret Life of Walter Mitty and Garden State. And the congregation should expect lots of pop culture references, as well.

There's a high probability that he'll squeeze a M*A*S*H reference or something relating to The Simpsons — maybe even a callback to a Peanuts comic strip.

Every week, Hardee makes an hour-long playlist on Apple Music, and he'll post a "song of the day" on Facebook, accompanied by a YouTube link.

WHY NOW, AND NOT THE IN THE SPRING?
The cool nights and mild, shorter days provide the ideal conditions for seed germination. In the spring, rain usually washes seed away.
A lawn that is never overseeded or aerated tends to grow old. If it is consistently mowed, it doesn't even have the opportunity to go to seed to propagate itself.
