Hebron DPW Project Making Progress

By Michael Sinkewicz

It's a topic that's generated considerable debate and controversy in Hebron: the public works building project.

Since 2010, the town's Public Building Committee has assessed nearly 40 sites, looking for a feasible location to construct a new facility to replace the current complex, which officials say is outdated and has fallen into disrepair.

This week, Republican Peter Kasper, the chairman of both the Board of Selectmen (BOS) and the Department of Public Works (DPW) Action Committee — a new commission formed last fall tasked with handling the day-to-day operations of the project — told the Rivereast that progress is being made and the project is steadily moving forward.

"I'm very confident this is the right approach," he said.

The goal, Kasper expressed, is to evaluate the viability of upgrading the DPW's facility at Old Colchester Road — a process that includes updating any cost assessments and schematics — and bring a proposal to the town that would ultimately be voted on at a community-wide referendum.

During his interview, Kasper reviewed the challenges facing the project and the town's efforts to restore public trust in the undertaking — a crucial component for the initiative to be successful.

Enhancing communication is a major priority, Kasper said, and the Action Committee recently established a communications subcommittee to assist with that effort.

"We know we can do better with that," he asserted, adding that updates will be posted on the town website and on social media in the weeks ahead. "It takes time and we'll hopefully keep earning trust."

Committed to Old Colchester Road

As of now, Kasper said the quickest a referendum would take place is the beginning of 2025. Soliciting updated prices — including the costs of architectural and engineering decisions, along with a final project estimate — will take months.

It's not a process the town wants to rush; one of Kasper's fears is that after presenting a proposal, it's still "not viable from the public's perspective."

"The last thing you want to do is bring something to referendum and have it fail," he said.

If any major detail — such as the bottom-line price tag — conflicts with the public's preference, "we start again."

Much of the controversy with the project stemmed from environmental concerns with building a new DPW complex at the Horton Property on Kinney Road. Residents publicly objected to the facility being constructed in close proximity to their homes, citing a variety of fears — most notably, salt contamination.

Because that site is classified as "GA" by the state Department of Energy and Environmental Protection — which means that its water is suitable for drinking without treatment — many viewed placing a DPW operation there as an unnecessary risk. Accordingly, the town's Green Committee also wrote a letter to local officials cautioning them against locating the facility at the 88-acre parcel on Kinney Road.

Kasper stressed that the action committee is entirely focused on options at the current DPW site at Old Colchester Road. Ideas relating to Kinney Road are "not something we're looking

Marlborough Resident Celebrates 100th Birthday

By Michael Sinkewicz

When Mary Viola was born in 1924, President Calvin Coolidge roamed the halls of the White House; the tallest structure in the world was the Eiffel Tower; and a gallon of milk cost 28 cents.

Next week on Feb. 20, the Marlborough resident will turn 100 years old — a remarkable milestone that few are able to celebrate. Centenarians account for just 0.03% of the country's population, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

Viola will be joined by her family next Tuesday at the Marlborough Health & Rehabilitation Center, to enjoy a slice of cake and swap stories that capture her fulfilling journey.

"She was a really good mom to me," said Gail Bantle, 64, one of Viola's two children who lives in Glastonbury. "She lived an amazing life."

It's hard to fully imagine a life that weaved through countless historic moments, a world war and the advancement of technology. Many traditions that have become seemingly timeless, were once-novel events. For example, the first-ever Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade rolled through 34th Street in New York City when Viola was just nine months old.

There were insights, though, that only a centenarian could provide. Bantle recalled grocery shopping with her mom, who would complain about the price of bread, which at first seemed mystifying until put into the right perspective.

"She lived through the Depression," Bantle conveyed, adding that her mom would be given a penny to pick up bread at the store.

Born in Ambler, Pa., Viola traveled around the country — enjoying stints locally in Stamford, Norwalk, Vernon and East Hartford, along with nursing home stays in Manchester and Marlborough; she also lived in the Bronx and on the West Coast. She has outlived three husbands, raised two children, has two grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. (Bantle is the daughter of Viola and her second husband.)

While reaching 100 seems like an impressive achievement, Viola actually has her sights set on a different number. Her cousin lived to be 104 — a new benchmark.

"I want to live to 105" — that's what she always said!" Bantle expressed. "It blows my mind. She really is special."

What's the secret to longevity?

It's hard to pinpoint one factor, Bantle said, but her mom didn't smoke or drink; she bowled

Observations & Ruminations

By Mike Thompson

Last Sunday's Super Bowl was one of the all-time greats. As I wrote two weeks ago, I was rooting for the Chiefs, so I was happy with the outcome – but the game itself was fantastic. A real nail-biter, which featured just the second overtime in Super Bowl history.

The first half was a rather low-scoring affair, and the Chiefs exhibited some of that same sloppiness they'd shown during the regular season, as opposed to the crisp football they'd played in the postseason.

But they seemed to flip a switch in the second half, scoring 10 unanswered points to grab a 13-10 lead over the 49ers. From there, the lead changed hands a couple more times, and regulation ended in a dead heat: a 19-19 tie.

Overtime saw San Francisco score a field goal, but then Patrick Mahomes and the KC offense marched down the field on a great drive and scored a championship-winning touchdown. It was a thrilling end to what was, like I said, just a fantastic Super Bowl.

Also fantastic? The Nielsen ratings for the Big Game. Sunday's game wound up being the highest-rated Super Bowl ever, with more than 123 million viewers turning in. That's 7% more than the amount that tuned in last year. I'm sure the Taylor Swift factor had an impact on the ratings, but whatever the reason, it's very impressive.

On a more local level, congratulations as well to Hebron attorney Kenneth Slater Jr., and East Hampton attorney Michael Rose. The two are among the 27 attorneys recently elected new Fellows by the Connecticut Bar Foundation (CBF) James W. Cooper Fellows Program.

Fellows are nominated by their peers based on their outstanding service to the profession and larger community and are elected by the CBF Board of Directors.

"We are pleased to recognize our new Fellows for their distinguished service to the legal profession, and for their commitment to the principles of equal justice and the rule of law," said Victoria Woodin Chavey, president of the Connecticut Bar Foundation.

The CBF said in a press release its mission is to "facilitate systemic change that advances civil justice for all, regardless of power or resources, to achieve a more just and equitable society."

The Fellows consist of lawyers in private practice, U.S. Court of Appeals judges, U.S. District Court judges, Connecticut Supreme, Appellate and Superior Court judges, corporate counsel, attorneys in nonprofit associations and legal services agencies, and government lawyers.

Slater is managing partner at Halloran & Sage LLP in Hartford, and Rose is managing partner at Rose Kallor LLP, also in Hartford.

Congratulations, gentlemen!

Are you suffering from a chronic health condition? Well, Norwich-based nonprofit Senior Resources – an agency that provides services to assist older individuals and individuals with disabilities, as well as their families and their caregivers – may be able to help.

Starting next week, Senior Resources is offering "Live Well with Chronic Conditions," a free six-week workshop, offered over Zoom.

In the workshop, folks will learn how to better manage their ongoing health condition. Topics include: healthy eating, physical activity and exercise, dealing with difficult emotions, decision-making and communications skills, working with healthcare providers, action planning, and more.

The workshop will meet Wednesdays from 1-3 p.m., from Feb. 21-March 27. To register, call 860-887-3561 ext. 127 or email Lori at lrygielski@seniorresourcesec.org.

The seventh annual Connecticut Spelling Bee will take place Sunday, March 3, at the Hoffman Auditorium at the University of Saint Joseph. Participants will compete for the chance to represent the state at the 2024 Scripps National Spelling Bee, which will take place in May in Maryland. The winner of the Connecticut bee will also receive a $1,000 scholarship to the University of Saint Joseph.

Students who have made it to The Connecticut Spelling Bee have already won their school- or town-wide spelling bees. Over 10,000 Connecticut students in grades 2-8 participated in the spelling bee program this Surfing through the channels this past weekend, I stumbled across a disconcerting (at least for this old goat) TV commercial. The ad depicted a bright-eyed, bushy-tailed young man stocking up on condoms "just in time for Valentine's Day."

Those of you with daughters will presumably not be surprised that salacious, cloven-hoofed satyrs are masquerading as polite, fresh-faced American boys, but I thought the Valentine's Day angle was a bit over the top—particularly when the ad proceeded to list all the erotic benefits of their product, which made the competition look about as attractive as a second-hand plastic sandwich bag. Apparently, technology has made tremendous strides since I was a hopeful young satyr with a years-old condom wearing a hole in my wallet.

Nevertheless, the decision to market condoms as a Valentine's Day purchase got me to thinking. And, after considerable rumination, I came to two main conclusions:

1) Clearly, despite all the divisiveness and turmoil in our country these days, American optimism among people younger and more energetic than myself is far from dead.

2) The more things change, the more they stay the same: i.e., beneath all the lip service to social progress, men are still basically swine.

I should confess also, lest you take me for an old lecher instead of a mere curmudgeon (though the two are not necessarily incompatible), that in my reckless channel surfing last weekend, I somehow strayed somewhat afield from my normal (and more comfortable) TV audience demographic. The latter typically attracts advertising for products that promise to cure everything from constipation to toe fungus, accompanied by minor side effects such as liver failure, incontinence and uncontrollable seizures followed by death.

I will admit there is no shortage of guaranteed miracles. One commercial geared to my age group hawks a pill full of powdered plant matter that's apparently supposed to be the equivalent of devouring an entire vegetable garden. Now, I'm no mathematical wizard, but it's pretty clear to me that, if you grind up a thimbleful of broccoli and cram it into a pill capsule, you've still only got a thimbleful of broccoli.

Nevertheless, even the ads targeting my decrepit demographic have the decency to stop short of raising unrealistic hopes by trying to sell me condoms for Valentine's Day. Most would seem to be content to just keep me mobile enough to get out to the mailbox and back without coughing up a kidney.

Now if some of you eager young bucks heading out this week with a bouquet of roses, a box of chocolates and a pocket full of condoms find that a little sad, let me offer a reality check. Trust me, the day will come when you'll be content to sit around with your few surviving buddies and brag about how many medications you have to take to keep breathing.

In the meantime, I hope you get hit by a bus.

Your Input Matters!

Colchester Residents:

On Feb. 21 at 6:30 p.m., the Board of Finance will conduct its first budget forum. All dates and times for the rest of the upcoming budget season are on the town's calendar at www.colchesterct.gov. These forums are a chance to make your voice heard regarding the town and school budgets and the use of your tax dollars. Your input matters!

Please make every effort to attend in person or via Zoom and participate in this vital process for the community.

Sincerely,

Scott Chapman, Chair
Colchester Board of Finance

Spending vs Ethics

To the Editor:

Recently, a Riverast article reported that the Portland BOS approved the purchase of a $525K firetruck chassis at a public hearing on January 17th. No surprise that most participants in attendance were members of the Portland Fire Department. No Zoom link was available, and no meeting minutes have been posted.

It appears First Selectman Curly's second term will mirror his first term, with Selectman Manning as the puppeteer. Over the past two years, Manning, 1st Lieutenant of the Company 3 firehouse, has publicly advocated and voted on BOS supplemental appropriations that benefited the fire department, totaling $1.5M. Manning chose not to recuse himself on fire department issues, although there is an appearance of a conflict of interest, which is a violation of Ethics rules. Manning is now advocating for the fire truck that the BOS voted to replace to be "gifted" back to the fire department for personal use. However, he is not the only member of the BOS who has benefited personally while a member of the board.

Selectman Pelton, the Portland High School track coach, spoke publicly at town meetings in favor of the $1.2M school track renovations. Funding for the track came from a $500K state grant and $700K in allocation from town funds. Pelton has also voted on town budgets that include pay raises for himself and revenue increases for the track department. Pelton's list of personal benefits extends beyond BOS meetings.

As the BOS wades into the deep end of the "swamp," how can we trust them to develop fiscally responsible budgets and make sound decisions that will impact the town for years?

When Ethics go unchecked taxpayers lose.

Citizen Trump

To the Editor: "For the purpose of this criminal case, former President Trump has become citizen Trump, with all of the defenses of any other criminal defendant. But any executive immunity that may have protected him while he served as President no longer protects him against this prosecution. ... It would be a striking paradox if the president, who alone is vested with the constitutional duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed, were the sole officer capable of defying those laws with impunity. ... We cannot accept that the office of the presidency places its former occupants above the law for all time thereafter." – United States Court of Appeals, DC Circuit ruling in USA v. Donald Trump No. 1:23-cr-00257-1.

Winter Sowing

To the Editor: Winter sowing of native plants is a wonderful way to beat the winter blues, jump start your gardening and grow your personal nursery of native flowers at little cost. Nature designed our native plants (phlox, rudbeckia, asters, butterfly weed, lobelia, turtleheads, coneflowers, etc.) to have seeds which can weather the cold, snow and wet of New England winters. In fact, these native plants need the cold, damp and changing temperature conditions for their seeds to germinate. While native seeds can be sown directly on prepared ground and left to be exposed to the snow and cold of winter, native seeds can also be sown in prepared water/milk jugs.

This Saturday, Feb. 17, the Hebron Pollinator Pathway will be holding a winter sowing workshop at the Douglas Library in Hebron. Stop by from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. to learn how easy it is to grow your own perennials using the milk jug technique. And find out how the Hebron Pollinator Pathway is using the direct sown on the ground to grow a wide range of native plants in their gardens at Raymond Brook Preserve. Fully prepared kits complete with a variety of native seeds will be available on a first-come basis. A fun event for all ages!

Good Against Evil

To the Editor: Over the years I have read many letters printed in the reader forum but nothing like the letter from Spencer Killian's reflection on Trump. Any person that writes a letter like that cannot have a functioning brain and is infected with hate, anger, and ignorance. To refer to the "Thousand Year Reich," "GOP gestapo," "Trump is a Nazi threat and Hitler," and condemn Republican legislators and senators. He states we must resist and oppose the Republican poison in local, state and federal election vote them out or there will be a civil war.

If we do what Spencer Killian wants, we will not have a country. Because of people like Spencer Killian this country is more divided than any time in history; it is now good against evil. The good love this country, want to make it great and keep it great, protect our borders, and our citizens want law and order and respect the constitution. I took an oath to protect this nation against all enemies both foreign and domestic. Duty, honor, country are words I live by. Make America great and keep it great – people like Spencer Killian have no idea what those words mean; people like me are now the enemy. I would suggest that people like Spencer Killian read the book The Revolutionary: Samuel Adams by Stacy Schiff; they might learn something.

The 2024 election could be the turning point in this country. We could continue on a path of destruction or start the long process of rebuilding to what our forefathers started.

David Anderson – Colchester

Contradictory Republicans

To the Editor: Last week Republicans contradicted their own fear-mongering about immigration on the Southern border. For months Maga Republicans have refused to approve funding for Ukraine, or Israel because they demanded changes in what they define as "an invasion of diseased caravans crossing the border."

In their moral zeal these same Trumpublicans, who are no strangers to political spectacles, drafted a conservative border bill, followed by a bogus impeachment of Homeland Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas. They demanded President Biden enact legislation to save our children from Fentanyl and our cities from violent immigrants. In turn, Biden encouraged Senate Democrats and Republicans to develop legislation that would meet the Republican demands. The outcome was bi-partisan legislation that not only adopted the austere Republican measures but augmented them with the most comprehensive and conservative border legislation in the nation's history.

However, despite the invasion of lawless illegals streaming across our border, the epidemic of Fentanyl killing our children, and the Biden administration handing the MAGA Republican Congress everything they asked for and more, Republicans rejected it, before they even read it. There is of course, something deeply hypocritical about peddling a crisis you are unwilling to resolve.

The reality is Republicans don't actually care about drugs, jobs, or the humanitarian crisis. What they really care about is defending their way of life from a perceived threat from others who don't look, speak or pray like they do. If Republicans really wanted to do something about the border they would begin with enforcing immigration laws within the agriculture, ranching, construction, and service industries who hire illegal immigrants to do the jobs Americans don't want. Rather than building a wall, maybe Americans should build a giant mirror, to reflect who we have become.

Luncheon Fundraiser Thanks

To the Editor: The fundraiser to support senior luncheons was held on Sunday, Feb. 4, and was another successful event. My amazing co-chair, Carol Lee, and I want to thank all those who helped make this a success: Emily Timrek for always caring and helping who was there very early Sunday to work and didn't leave until everything was cleaned up. Carol and Emily are awesome workers. Thanks go to Rachael Elam and her daughters, Audrey, Ella and Isabelle for helping run the booths; Tanya Hughes for handling the money for us; Lisa Kurtz in charge of the bake table, and baking, and her helper Ellie Skoog; Marie Smith for working all day as our floater helping wherever she was needed and for baking. Thanks also to Linda Armstrong who helped and Annemarie Daigle for baking, and to Alicia Lee and Kim and Tony Hawes.

To our vendors we owe many thanks for being steadfast and supporting our efforts at all fundraisers. Melanie Merkel, PCTV was there filming, along with state Rep. Steve Weir who came to visit. Saturday night helpers were Bob Post, Steve Fuss, and his children setting up tables. To those who donated but could not attend the event we want to remember them as well: Eric Anderson, Tiiu and Ylo Anson, Jeff Ballard, Suzanne Heise, Scott Person and those who wish to remain nameless – thank you. Lunch was provided by Chili's for those who wanted to try something different than the usual pizza we serve. Nice change and well-received!

We owe all the people who stopped in to support us a huge thank you, without our helpers, vendors, and shoppers we would not be able to reach our goal. Great job everyone! If anyone has been omitted, please forgive me; I always want to include everyone!

Invasive Species in Lake

To the Editor: The Conservation-Lake Commission was informed last year that Lake Pocotopaug is harboring an invasive species of plant known as hydrilla (Hydrilla verticillata, to be exact). Hydrilla is particularly aggressive, and the strain in our lake is the same strain that is found in the Connecticut River. Hydrilla is a submerged plant which is bad because it grows quickly (sometimes up to an inch a day), and crowds out other, native plants by producing a dense canopy near the water surface. It can entangle boat propellers and interfere with recreation and native wildlife.

The Conservation-Lake Commission is studying how widespread the hydrilla is in Lake Pocotopaug and reviewing potential ways to control or eliminate its growth. All boaters to the lake can help with a simple 3 step process of CLEAN, DRAIN, DRY

- 1) Clean off visible aquatic plants, animals, mud and algae from all equipment
- 2) Drain the motor, bilge, livewell, and other water containing potential hazards before leaving water access
- 3) Dry everything for at least 5 days or wipe with a towel before reuse

Happy boating to everyone this season!

Muddy Grasshoppers

To the Editor: Do gray beards equate to wisdom? What about Bush League behaviors? Who do you call, at 3 a.m., when you're up to your axels in mud? AAA? Rampart Squad 51? The Chief of Police? Ghostbusters?

At the Feb. 5, DPW Action Committee meeting we heard the good news about dusting off Hebron's 2015 plans to rebuild the Public Works at its present location on Old Colchester Road. The topic of money, to purchase the Eversource land, was also raised. Some suggested the land could be rolled into the project's final costs. Others wondered if Open Space would be willing to contribute. Unfortunately, since 2015, Open Space's budget has been cut several times. However, all is not lost. Open Space has proved itself to be quite resourceful, surviving on its shoe string budget much like the ant in the children's book, The Ant and the Grasshopper. Maybe Open Space's industrious ants can come together to rescue a cold and hungry grasshopper.

What do muddy vehicles, grasshoppers and Open Space have to do with each other? Frankly, I don't know. My primary concern is our neighborhoods' drinking water and what's left of Hebron's history. #save17

Trump Supporters

To the Editor: Trump supporters are an amazing bunch. Whatever they think of Joe Biden, another Trump term is an overwhelming threat to our country. Supporting this would-be tyrant demonstrates unpatriotic disloyalty to our great nation.

They scream about the economy. But by every measure – except inflation, which affected all our peer nations, and is now under control – it's been better under Biden. Trump has been publicly rooting against our economy. He is perfectly happy to inflict misery on everyone to win votes. Supporting Trump is supporting anti-American political extortion.

(A note to Don Denley: yes, people say the economy is bad; they also say their own finances are fine. The disconnect demonstrates the gullible believing right-wing media's incessant lies; that doesn't make it true.)

They follow Trump's lead and talk about crime rates. Outside of a little blip that started with the pandemic, they've been falling for decades, and 2023 had the sharpest drop in murder rate on record. But the facts won't stop their screaming. Supporting Trump is supporting unjustified paranoia.

Then they focus on immigration. When the Democrats gave the Republicans everything they wanted in an immigration bill, Congress-sional Trump supporters nixed the bill because it might help Biden politically. This is not speculation; they said it out loud. They claim Biden can do it all via executive orders. Remember when Obama set immigration rules through executive orders? They went through the roof. But they were silent when Trump did so. Supporting Trump is supporting crass manipulation.

Now Trump says he'd let Putin invade certain NATO allies. Those supporters will claim justification, as evident in Ken Hjulstrom's notion that Trump is a horrible human being but that's what we need right now. Supporting Trump is supporting cowardly bullying.

In fact, supporting Trump is supporting evil, plain and simple.

Sincerely,
Scott Sauyet - Andover

Note: Sauyet is co-chair of the Andover Democratic Town Committee and a member of the RHAM Board of Education, but said he is writing as an individual.

Predictable Liberal

To the Editor:

Since Scott Sauyet graciously allowed me to have the last word on his version of "Bidenomics," I will oblige.

Scott used a predictable liberal maneuver in blaming Trump for increased lumber prices (via Canadian tariffs), while justifying an illegitimate rationalization of "most Americans doing better under Bidenomics." His arguments, like most liberal arguments, are based loosely on facts and firmly on the belief that the moon is made of cheese. Maybe one of Scott's math degrees should have been in reading and writing comprehension because his arguments lack both. It also appears that Scott's math degrees might be in Democratic math because they produce a convoluted interpretation of financial theory.

To approximate a quote from Scott: "Mr. Kozlowski is saying that lumber prices rose 163% (in 2020) during one year of Trump's term and have fallen 46% since, mostly under Biden." Uhm...Scott...do you remember 2020? Remember COVID, buddy? Or are you getting like Biden? Your attempt at statistical misdirection is cute to other liberals, but not to the informed. Prior to 2020 (after three years of Trump), lumber prices were 40% lower than now (after three years of Biden). And that counts as a strike against Trump? Liberal math.

But this isn't about lumber. This is about the residents of Andover understanding who is in a leadership position in their town government, a position that confers authority in the fiscal and educational direction of the town. Although letters are written under the toothless disclaimer of "writing as an individual" town leaders should leave political biases, factual inaccuracies and statistical convolutions to those who are not responsible for shaping an all-inclusive community. Needless to say, if Scott was on the other side of the aisle, freedom to express himself would be short-lived and his government tenure would be even shorter.

Incredulously,
Ed Kozlowski - Colchester

Changes are Underway

To the Editor:

Exciting changes are underway at KOCO Child Care Center, reflecting our unwavering commitment to the children and families of East Hampton and surrounding communities.

Janet Santos, a longstanding member of the KOCO family, assumes the role of executive director, while Laurie Caron continues her vital role as director of KOCO. This strategic decision ensures the seamless continuation of our mission: to provide quality child care to families in East Hampton and neighboring areas.

As a not-for-profit center, we take pride in serving our community's needs, fostering a thriving environment where every child feels valued and empowered to reach their full potential. Our center is more than just a facility; it's a nurturing community where children flourish, supported by dedicated staff and engaged families.

As we embrace these changes, we invite the East Hampton community to celebrate with us. Join us in congratulating Janet on her new role and continuing to support Laurie in her dedicated efforts to enrich the lives of our children.

Public Works Promise

To the Editor:

It is a relief to see planning underway to fix and update Hebron's Public Works facility at Old Colchester Road. I urge Chairman Peter Kasper and the members of the Department of Public Works Action Committee to keep the promise established by the Public Works Survey. A vast majority of 69% of respondents established a clear mandate: "Keep Public Works at Old Colchester Road." As this effort proceeds I encourage the members of the committee to return to the Survey and familiarize themselves with the hundreds of comments offered. The survey results are on the town website and the comments include:

"Contamination of water, air and land we need to survive on should never be compromised or threatened for any reason."

"Current site but with new ideas on how the town can manage its public works responsibilities in the current environment and with an eye toward the future. Perhaps we need to think differently about how we do things and not focus on the site."

"We are a small town, we do not need a state of the art facility. Stop spending my money."

"Cost. Building costs have increased greatly. Spend the town's budgeted money as you would spend your own and I hope it is frugally and conscience of finances and impact to homeowners."

"Fix what you have. Not many towns are building new facilities - especially small towns like ours. It should not have fallen into the dis-repaired state it is currently in."

I encourage residents of Hebron to attend the School Board Adopts $8.67M Budget

By Michael Sinkewicz

The Marlborough Board of Education (BOE) last week unanimously adopted a budget for the 2024-25 fiscal year — though not without some complaints from the public.

The BOE adopted an operational budget of $8.67 million — a $229,396, or 2.72%, increase over current-year spending.

In addition, a $75,000 capital plan was approved to address three projects at Elmer Thienes-Mary Hall Elementary School — $10,000 less than the 2023-24 budget.

After receiving a stamp of approval during the BOE's special meeting on Feb. 7, the spending plan was expected to be presented to the Board of Finance on Thursday, after press time.

The adopted proposal is slightly more than the original blueprint drafted last month by Marlborough Superintendent of Schools Holly Hageman. At its latest meeting, the BOE made two minor modifications that resulted in a net increase of $2,503 relative to the initial operational budget request.

Hageman told the board that a new bus contract was finalized at a lower price than was originally assigned in the budget. Accordingly, the board unanimously agreed to decrease the proposal by $5,577.

Then the board decided to increase the budget by $8,081 to allow the district to post the job description for the pupil services director position — which is a new employee included in the 2024-25 proposal — at “up to” a .5 full-time equivalent (FTE); initially, it was listed as a .45 FTE.

That revision passed by a 4-2 tally; board members Susan Stolfi and Angela Colantonio voted in opposition.

Allowing the district to post the position — only if the budget passes at referendum — at up to .5 FTE potentially welcomes a larger pool of applicants. In Connecticut, a retired administrator can only be re-employed for up to .45 FTE.

Together, the two changes resulted in a net increase of just over $2,500.

Overall, the advanced budget is nearly identical to the preliminary figures outlined by Hageman. The percentage increase for 2024-25 (2.72%) is similar to the previous budgets supported by the town. The last three fiscal years included school budget increases of 4.82%, 2.78% and 3.08%.

Too Many Principals?

At the beginning of the meeting, several audience members criticized the proposal, including two elected officials, who said they spoke as private citizens. Selectmen Deb Bourbeau and Betty O'Brien both referenced the cost of employing two school administrators — a principal and vice principal. The current people in those roles — Dan White and Kim Kelley, respectively — have both announced plans to retire at the end of the current school year.

Bourbeau said she “can't understand why” the district continues to fund a principal and a vice principal.

“I don't think it's fiscally responsible,” she added.

Throughout the evening, Hageman offered further insight into the spending plan, at times rebuking some of the assertions made by residents.

In regards to building administrators, she indicated that principals not only oversee the student population, but dozens of staff members as well. They also supervise programs, and check in with a variety of daily operations.

When asked by one school board member if the school could survive with one principal, Hageman said it would not.

“I think it would be a terrible idea,” she said.

That one principal, Hageman continued, would be tied up in meetings and “not engaging with students and not being present in classrooms.”

“They would not be visible,” she stated.

Hageman defended the makeup of the proposed spending plan, including pushing back against one claim by a resident that it was “top-heavy.”

“It's easy to just that we're ‘top-heavy,’” she said. “You really need to do the analysis, and I have.”

She added after the meeting, “I'm always aware of taxpayers' concerns and I want to do right by everybody and at the same time, it takes investments to keep a school district firmly afloat.”

While the district is slated to spend $417,428 in 2024-25 for a part-time superintendent and two principals, (for a total of 2.45 FTE) — which includes a combined contractual increase of nearly $8,000 over the current year — it's getting a good deal, according to Hageman. Because she's part-time, the district enjoys a substantial savings on her salary while still getting a devoted school chief.

Much of the budget, she added, is out of her, or the board's, control. Due to contractual obligations, the proposal would've been north of a 2% increase before any new initiatives were added.

“You sort of have to be a little bit realistic about the moving parts that go into a budget,” Hageman said.

The pupil services position was eliminated six years ago, and its reinstatement would allow the administrative team — specifically the two principals — to shift back to their standard responsibilities. When the role previously existed in the district, it was also part-time, which was the superintendent's recommendation once again.

Hageman asserted that principals are supposed to look after all students, including those involved with special education programs. But a part-time pupil services employee, she conveyed, will be able to assume some of those responsibilities, which will allow the principals to be more engaged with curriculum and be interactive with students.

“Our current administration is really very challenged to be able to do those things,” Hageman said. “And we want to get back to what we envisioned building administrators' roles to be.”

Later in the evening, she explained that White and Kelley often work 12-hour days, and that a new pupil services director would ease that workload.

“I don't think that's sustainable,” Hageman said. “I don't think that's a healthy lifestyle.”

She added, “I think we need to be a better employer than that.”

The capital plan includes three different projects totaling $75,000. Finishing the waterproofing of the brick exterior of the school will cost $30,000; it's a four-year project that began during the 2021-22 school year.

Replacing four doors and door frames is slated to cost $20,000; previously, the district spent $51,000 to replace 10 other doors. Hageman requested $25,000 to repair sidewalks outside the school.

Kindergarten Registration

Elmer Thienes — Mary Hall Elementary School (MES) in Marlborough will accept registration packets for kindergarten students for the 2024-25 school year on two days next month.

Packets will be accepted Wednesday, March 20 (9-11 a.m., 1-2 p.m., and 5-6:30 p.m.) and Thursday, March 21 (9-11 a.m. and 1-2 p.m.). All completed kindergarten packets should be dropped off at the school's Main Office, located at 25 School Drive.

Under a new state law, starting with the 2024-25 school year, children will need to be five years of age by Sept. 1 in order to attend kindergarten. If your child does not meet the new entry cut-off, they may still be admitted to kindergarten upon a written request from the parent or guardian that is sent to the MES administration and an assessment completed by the school that determines admitting the child to kindergarten would be developmentally appropriate. All interested families will have their child assessed in the spring along with all the children who meet the new state guidelines of Sept. 1.

If you have an eligible child or a child you would like assessed and you have not received a registration packet, call the school office at 860-295-6220. If you receive a registration packet and do not plan to enroll your child for the 2024-25 school year, please notify the school as soon as possible.

Board of Education Evaluates Budget Requests

By London Brazal

The Board of Education met Monday and evaluated the currently proposed budget for the next school year, expressing concerns regarding the allocation of funds towards new clubs and other items.

At the beginning of the budget workshop, students from the high school who are members of DECA explained why they needed funding. DECA prepares emerging leaders and entrepreneurs for careers in marketing, finance, hospitality, and management in high schools and colleges internationally. One student said the business club was not enough and DECA allows them to get more hands-on experience in business. Another student said the club prepares students professionally and teaches them how to effectively communicate with adults. Funding for the club would help get students to conventions and competitions and pay for branded blazers that add to their professional attire when traveling.

An overarching concern for the budget is the fact that the state is requiring more mandates but is providing less grant funding and reimbursements. According to Superintendent of Schools Paul Smith, the state is not increasing its education cost share (ECS) funding, noting that the number has stayed the same since he started in 2016. "The state is letting us down," said Smith.

When comparing the budget to local schools and those with similar demographics, Smith said the budget is high but so is everyone else. Smith and school business manager Karen Asetta have compared the district's budget and many schools are facing similar challenges in this year's budget.

On Jan. 1, the state increased the minimum wage to $15.69 per hour. Asetta said that some staff are not far away from that number. With that, the district is competing to keep attractive but appropriate salaries which makes the ability to hire people in the future difficult. Another looming concern is that future housing developments of any significant size affect the number of staff needed.

One of the district's goals is to fund student's academic future by improving instructional programming. Ten years ago, there were less than 10 advanced placement courses, now there are 16 offered at the high school. Last year, the school received a grant to increase the number of dual enrollment courses that award college credit through the UConn Early College Experience (ECE) and articulated courses with Middlesex Community College. Among the Class of 2024, 99.3% of students are engaged in college and career readiness courses. This is much higher than East Haddam with 83% or Glastonbury with 69.7%. Some of the budget requests at the high school include supplies and the opportunity to add electives.

Fortunately, teachers at the high school have been willing to gain certifications to teach college credit courses. High school Principal Eric Verner explained that most teachers already teach the topic so it does not interfere with current scheduled courses.

Some requests in the budget will be funded through the Perkins Grant and Title IV Grant. These are typically guaranteed but administrators must apply for them. In terms of federal funding and support, many grants require that 40% of students receive free or reduced lunches. East Hampton does not meet that threshold at 19.4%. It is not official but Smith said that a town grant writer does not look like it will be budgeted.

During the budget workshop, another concern among board members was how to justify club stipends. Certain clubs have received funding through grants such as the garden club at Memorial School and Center School. Positions were grant-funded but would need future stipends. Smith explained that some advisors have volunteered for four to five years so it is worth putting money toward the clubs. He also stressed that grants help establish items but then the school has to pick up the finances afterwards. "These are the boxes, like in past years, are the first things to go [out of the budget]," said Smith.

Board member Michael Buck was worried about how clubs were established throughout the year on an approved budget with volunteers. He said it sets people up for disappointment and if it can't be funded, then it might not continue. "That's not really fair for the kids," Buck said.

According to Smith, there is a liability to bring in volunteers to help run the various clubs. Those who are brought in, typically coaches, are hired but have to get certifications through the state and be CPR/First Aid certified as well. Teachers get the first option to run clubs and stipends are negotiated through the union.

Board member Matt Engelhardt said these stipends were relatively low costs and are vital for engaging students in the education experience. Another goal for the district is to fund the student's personal growth and wellness. Clubs are a simple way for students to stay involved in school and promote mental health and wellness. Mary Clark, director of curriculum and instruction, said that they wanted to look at opportunities to align clubs across the four schools. She added that it helps give students a developmentally appropriate experience.

One complicated proponent of the budget is special education. In previous years, the school has budgeted for what they expect to happen when it comes to outplacements. There is no way of anticipating the number or needs of students who move into the district. The state increased a programming component where students can be a part of the transition academy program until June 30 following their 22nd birthday. Director of special education and pupil personnel services Rodney Mosier said that change had a "pretty significant impact" on the current budget because it was unexpected and needed an estimated $250,000 of funding.

In previous years, staffing has also been a major concern among voters. A budget request that did not make it into the budget was five paraeducators for kindergarten classrooms. Currently, there is only one paraeducator who is shared among the six sections of students. The recommended addition of five paraeducators creates a smaller student-to-teacher ratio with opportunities that include small group instruction, behavioral support, assessment support and academic intervention. Many board members support at least one additional paraprofessional for the early learners. Board member Ken Barber said extra staff at the entry-level grades would be beneficial in the long run.

The next Board of Education will be on Monday, Feb. 26, at 6:30 p.m. at Town Hall. The BOE will vote on the budget which has to be submitted to the town clerk by March 1.

Kindergarten Registration

Memorial Elementary School in East Hampton is accepting applications for all children eligible to enter kindergarten in September.

Per new legislation, any child who is five years old on or before Sept. 1, 2024, is eligible to register for Memorial's kindergarten program. If your child will not be 5 by this date but will be 5 by Jan. 1, 2025, and you would like them to attend kindergarten in the 2024-25 school year, you must submit a request for early entry.

Registration packets will be available beginning Wednesday, Feb. 14, in the Memorial School lobby, at East Hampton Public Library, and at www.easthamptonps.org. Completed registration forms are due to the Memorial School office by Thursday, March 28, along with a full-size copy of the child's birth certificate and proof of residency in East Hampton.

In addition, a current health assessment form must be on file with the school nurse's office by Friday, Aug. 9. Students may not begin kindergarten until vaccination records have been submitted.

Once all completed registration paperwork is returned to Memorial, you will be contacted to schedule a screening appointment for your child.

Screening appointments will be held Monday, May 13; Wednesday, May 15; and Friday, May 17. Appointments will be scheduled for half-hour time blocks between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. If you have requested early entry to kindergarten for your 4-year-old, you will be also scheduled for an additional assessment on Monday, May 20, or Friday, May 24.

Contact the Memorial School office at 860-365-4020 if you have questions regarding the registration process.

Technology Tutoring Session

Middle Haddam Public Library, located at 2 Knowles Rd., Middle Haddam, will offer a One-on-One Technology Tutoring Session with members of the East Hampton High School Interact Club on Tuesday, Feb. 27, from 3-6 p.m.

Sign up for your individual session in advance by calling or emailing the library and bring your cell phone or tablet to the session.

Candidate Profile Prepped for Superintendent Search

By London Brazal

Results from the superintendent focus group and survey for the candidate profile were presented at the Board of Education meeting on Monday. Now into March, the search committee will begin to vet and interview candidates.

In December, Mary Broderick with the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education (CABE) was selected as an executive search consultant. Broderick conducted different focus groups and a survey was available between Jan. 8 and 26 to learn more about the school district and opinions about what traits the new superintendent should have. During that time, there were 12 focus group interviews and she spoke with 38 individuals. The largest group was with the current administrators. Other people who made up the interviews were some teachers, parents, students, elected town officials and community organization representatives.

The survey had 108 respondents, including residents and staff. Broderick said more parents and teachers participated in the survey versus the focus groups. Combined, 146 individuals participated in some way. "It's probably statistically significant. It's a low number but it's representative," said Broderick.

One of the data themes was the strengths of the East Hampton public schools. Many of the respondents thought that teacher and staff appreciation was a big strength. Furthermore, people thought that staff were positive, dedicated, hard-working and committed to helping students. Other people thought that kids also feel connected to at least one staff member.

Another strength of the district was that many teachers either lived in the community or grew up in town. With that, many teachers tend to stay in the district and respondents said that it feels more family-like this way. In general, people thought that teachers are generally unified in the sense of direction for the schools.

A good number of interviewees believed that East Hampton has pride in the community and a positive culture. They also said the spirit spreads through the town as well. To further that point, some people said the schools were warm and welcoming.

A district-wide shared goal people mentioned was transparency. Respondents mentioned that there is an open dialogue between students and staff. Some even said that communication is also a strength and saw high value in the Monday morning newsletters to make sure everyone was on the same page.

On the other side, one of the largest challenges respondents mentioned is the budget and finances. People emphasized that the budgeting process can be complex and contentious. Some thought the current rate of spending is not sustainable and Broderick echoed the fact she sees this around other towns in Connecticut. Another concern people mentioned was the generational issues since people see an aging population at odds with families who are new to the area.

Following the COVID-19 pandemic, respondents noted that there is a challenge regarding social-emotional learning and mental health.

People highlighted the need for increased support, resources and staffing to address the needs of students.

Another challenge that contributors stated was the disparate concerns regarding diversity and equity. Some interviewees said that there is a lack of sufficient diversity and there needs to be more time spent with the diversity, equity and inclusion framework.

After analyzing the strengths and challenges of the East Hampton public schools, traits for the next superintendent were assessed. The three most common themes were someone who will build trusting relationships with students, staff and the community, communicate and collaborate with the schools and has experience in running a school district and creating a strong budget.

The list of traits was extensive. They ranged from trustworthy and respectful to humble and inspiring. In terms of values, respondents wanted the next superintendent to prioritize open communication while valuing input from all stakeholders. Furthermore, the person needs to be committed to consensus through negotiation and compromise.

From a student perspective, they want someone who will show up to support their work, performances and other major accomplishments. Many students enjoy it when the superintendent comes to their events. Teachers are also looking for someone who will provide them with unwavering support. Generally, respondents also want a person who will keep political behavior out of the schools.

With all of the information from the surveys and focus groups, Broderick has compiled a candidate profile which will be sent to those who applied for the position. Board of Education chairperson Nancy Kohler previously told the Rivereast that they hope to have a finalist for the position by early spring as the new hire would be expected to start on July 1.

The East Hampton Public Schools system is seeking 3- and 4-year-old residents interested in preschool programs for the 2024-25 school year. There will be two preschool programs offered – the Integrated preschool half-day program and full-day Smart Start program.

Memorial Elementary School's preschool Integration Program will be held three times a week for 3-year-old students and four times a week for 4-year-old students. Due to limited spaces, selection for peer models will be determined through a lottery process. If selected, peer models demonstrating age-appropriate skills will be assigned by age to either a three-day-a-week or four-day-a-week schedule (2.5 hours per day). Children must be toilet-trained and turn 3 prior to Sept. 1 to be eligible for the 3-year-old program and turn 4 by Sept. 1 for the 4-year-old program.

Memorial Elementary School's Smart Start Program will be held five full days per week (8:50 a.m.-2:50 p.m.), following the East Hampton Public Schools calendar. Priority will be given to 4-year-old children that meet income guidelines or have other factors for consideration. Other applicants, regardless of economic or risk factors will then be selected. Children must turn 4 prior to Sept. 1 to be eligible for Smart Start.

Parents interested in proceeding through the selection process must pick up an application/information packet at either Memorial Elementary School or East Hampton Public Library. The completed parent interview form, immunization form and a proof of residency must be returned to Jodi Blyler at Memorial School office no later than March 15. Once all three forms are returned, parents will be contacted, no later than March 22, to schedule a time to bring their child for the screening and lottery/selection process.

Forms received after the March 15 date will not be accepted.

Town Council Appoints New Member

By London Brazal

The Town Council began its meeting Tuesday with a goodbye – officially accepting the resignation of council member Brandon Goff. The Republican submitted his resignation on Jan. 31, as he has taken a new job out of state.

In his resignation letter, Goff thanked the town for allowing him to serve on the council for the last few years. He wished the best of luck to everyone.

On behalf of the Republican Town Committee, council member Deb Cunningham nominated former Town Council member Tim Feegel to fill the vacancy. Following state law, the new member must be of the same party as the vacating member.

Cunningham said that Feegel is no stranger to the community and comes with years of experience, serving on the Town Council as well as various committees.

“He would truly be an asset to our council and to our community,” added Cunningham. Feegel was a member of the previous council but did not seek reelection last November. The nomination was accepted and Feegel was sworn in by new town clerk, Patty Burnham.

Following the new appointment, the Council reviewed an ordinance that would explain various regulations as they related to the construction or maintenance of public roads. The ordinance states the requirement for permits and bonds from those working and would identify certain standards for the protection of workers, motorists and pedestrians in and around those sites. In particular, the ordinance added a requirement that those working on or adjacent to all public roads in the community notify the police chief, who could, based on the conditions and characteristics of the particular road, require additional safety measures. This was intended to improve the safety of work sites that were subject to heavy traffic or reduced sightlines. A required public hearing will take place as part of the next regular Town Council meeting.

On Tuesday, the council also established the East Hampton Water Committee as an advisory body as requested by council chairperson, Dean Markham. Their responsibility would include overseeing, publicizing, receiving community input on and advising the Town Council on the effort to establish a new water source, interconnect existing water systems and expand municipal water. The committee consists of seven members, up to three of which may be members of the Town Council. It establishes two-year terms for the citizen members and establishes the Town Manager and the Public Utilities Administrator as non-voting ex officio members.

The council also accepted two clarifications about the Firefighter Awards Program, which is a retirement plan for volunteer firefighters. The plan is managed by a group called the Board of Trustees, which includes the Finance Director Jeff Jylkka and representatives from the Fire Commission and the firefighters. The first clarification confirmed the current members of the Board of Trustees. The original members were the Finance Director, the Fire Chief, the Chair of the Fire Commissioners and a firefighter member. The second decision picked a new investment advisor for the program. The Board of Trustees recommended Fiducient Advisors for the job and was approved by the council.

Following that, the council approved a revised general order regarding family violence. The state’s Police Officer Standards and Training Council (POSTC) has established a new state-wide policy for officer and department response to crimes of family violence and this policy must be adopted and trained in the department. This standard is part of the accreditation requirements of the State for police agencies.

As the 2024-25 budget preparation process continues, the members of the Town Council, Board of Finance and the Board of Education will meet for a tri-board meeting on Thursday, Feb. 22, beginning at 5:30 p.m., at Town Hall. The boards will review draft information on the town’s budget, including education, general government and capital expenses. The public is welcome and encouraged to attend and can express comments publicly. Additionally, the Town Council will be discussing at its upcoming meeting additional opportunities for the public to provide input on the town’s budget in informal sessions.

Drafts for the town and education budget must be submitted to the town clerk by March 1. Throughout the week of March 18, the Board of Finance will review the budgets in detail.

Belltown Motors

Tire & Service Center

We know, we know...we’ve just seen some snow. BUT, Spring is just a month away so we’re preparing for the new season and want to get your car ready!

Follow these six tips from Belltown to get your vehicle ready for spring:

- 1) Inspect your cooling system and check for any cracks or leaks in the radiator or hoses. Be sure the coolant and antifreeze levels are at least half full.
- 2) Inspect your tires – measure your tire’s tread and be sure none of your tires are balding. Proper traction is important for the rainy spring weather ahead.
- 3) Check your windshield wipers! Between ice, snow and salt, your windshield wipers are really put to work during the winter months. It is recommended to change your windshield wipers each season, especially as the rainy spring season approaches. Well-functioning windshield wipers will improve visibility and reduce the risk of an accident.
- 4) Check your battery. The average car battery lasts 4 to 5 years. Your vehicle’s battery works extra hard during extremely hot and cold weather, and these conditions can drain your battery.
- 5) Top off your fluids including windshield wiper fluid, engine oil and brake fluid.
- 6) Wash your vehicle... because a shiny, clean car isn’t just for looks. Your vehicle’s paint and undercarriage need to be thoroughly cleaned because salt and other winter chemicals can accumulate and cause rusting and/or grime build up.

Call today to schedule your appointment: 860-267-7222

Better Dental HEALTH

A Practice For Optimal Dental Fitness

by George M. Mantikas, DMD

THE FOUR TYPES OF TEETH AND THEIR ROLES

There are four types of teeth, each one having its own shape and function. Incisors, the eight teeth in the front center of your mouth (four on both bottom and top), are primarily used to bite into food. Canines, the next teeth that develop in the mouth, are the four sharpest teeth, used for tearing food apart. Premolars account for eight teeth; they are used for tearing and crushing food and have a flat biting surface. Molars are the largest and sturdiest teeth. Their function is similar to that of the premolars: to grind, tear, and crush food. Molars also have a large and flat biting surface, making them perfect for the job.

We’ll use all the tools at our disposal to help keep all your incisors, canines, premolars, and molars strong and healthy. We fervently believe that one of the most important services we deliver to our patients is a plan for preventive care. Along with daily brushing and flossing, one crucial tool to your good oral health is regular visits to the dentist. We have office hours by appointment.

P.S. Also called third molars, the last set of teeth to come in are the four wisdom teeth.

Library Planning for the Future

East Hampton Public Library is planning for the future by developing a new Strategic Plan and is looking for input from the community to help guide services in the coming years.

The library will host three different Community Conversations next month in order to gain a better understanding of people's aspirations for East Hampton and what role the library can play in achieving those goals.

Community Conversations will be held Saturday, March 2, from 10:30 a.m.-noon; Friday, March 15, from 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; and Tuesday, March 26, from 6:30-8 p.m. No registration is required and all are welcome to attend. Light refreshments will be served.

The library said it also hopes to conduct a community-wide survey during March to gather ideas and information, which would be available digitally on the library's website (www.EastHamptonPublicLibrary.org) or as a paper version at the library.

Cabin Fever History Talk

On Saturday, Feb. 24, editor and publisher Richard "Dick" Shriver, a resident of Old Lyme, will give a talk on his quarterly magazine Estuary: Life of the Connecticut River at 11 a.m. at the East Hampton Library Community Room, 105 Main St.

The talk is part of the Cabin Fever History Series organized by the Chatham Historical Society and co-sponsored by the East Hampton Library.

Shriver will use PowerPoint slides to illustrate his presentation on the last 12,000 years of the Connecticut River to the present, with special attention paid to abuse of the river during and following the industrial revolution. He will acknowledge those in government who established the present-day regulatory apparatus that has helped clean up the water in the river. He will also summarize the works currently underway for the long-term benefit of the environmental and ecological features of the river.

Register in person at the library, by calling 860-267-6621, or online at easthamptonpubliclibrary.org. For more information, contact Chatham Historical Society member Marty Podskoch at 860-267-2442 or podskoch@comcast.net.

Camp Ingersoll Celebrates 10 Years of ‘Chill for Change’

By London Brazal

It may seem a distant memory after Tuesday’s snowstorm, but last Saturday featured a taste of spring; the sun was starting to appear, along with 50-degree weather. And, folks lined up to jump into the chilly waters of Jobs Pond at YMCA Camp Ingersoll, to raise money to help send students to camp.

This year marked the 10th anniversary of “Chill for Change.” Camp Director Ben Silliman explained that each year, the event has grown in different ways. Though polar plunges are common in the area as a fundraising method, Camp Ingersoll modeled theirs after YMCA Camp Sloper in Southington who will be hosting their 19th annual plunge later this month.

Over the 10 years of the event, there have been progressively more jumpers and donors. And in the last few years, they have switched to an online registration and donation page that has helped streamline the process. At the plunge on Feb. 10, roughly 65 people jumped into the water. Though the water was just as cold as in previous years, the 50-degree weather made it more enjoyable after getting out and people warmed up faster than normal.

“It was probably the warmest one yet. Stepping into warmer temperatures was more comfortable and created a more fun and positive atmosphere,” said Silliman. “It’s not that bad. You can be uncomfortable for a little bit to help lifelong change.”

As of publication, more than $31,100 was raised. Silliman expects the number to increase as the link to donate will remain open for a few more weeks. The proceeds are used for scholarships and financial aid to help send kids to camp.

To enhance accessibility for all families, the camp has a tiered pricing system. Families select the tier that best suits their needs. Tier selections are treated confidentially and can be submitted during online registration. All children enjoy the same camp experience regardless of financial aid.

As music played to lighten spirits, jumpers were also competing for awards. Sherri Condon won “best dressed” in her Devil in the Blue Dress costume. The “best team theme” went to the Crazy Caps who dressed as old-timey swimmers with striped swimsuits and mustaches. The Crazy Caps also won the “largest pigsty” for raising the most money as a group. Members included Alex Pullium, Cheryl Silliman, Kristen Capitanio, Nate Bresson and Nathan Capitanio. Silliman also won the “largest piggy bank” bringing in the most fundraised money as an individual.

Camp Ingersoll staff said they would also like to highlight the three largest sponsors for the plunge: Butler Construction, Prime Source CT for shirts and Redi-Rooter. They would also like to thank the Portland Dive Team for helping to make sure everyone was safe.

Many participants of the Camp Ingersoll fundraiser dressed up while jumping into the chilly waters in early February. Sherri Condon won “best-dressed” in her Devil in the Blue Dress costume pictured with her husband James.

Every month, Camp Ingersoll hosts a family event. A family hike and fire-building workshop is scheduled for March 23, from 2-4 p.m. at Camp Ingersoll. Families are invited to a day of outdoor enjoyment under the sun. Activities include a scavenger hunt, a serene nature walk, a one-mile hike through the forest and a fire-building workshop. The day concludes with toasted marshmallows provided for all attendees. A suggested donation of $10 is appreciated.

Camp Ingersoll offers two types of camp: traditional and specialty. The traditional camp has a wide range of activities and experiences with eight, 45-minute periods. Specialty camps cater to interests such as mountain biking, dance, theater, sports and art.

Silliman added that Camp Ingersoll is also a place for kids to learn helpful values while making connections. “It’s important to learn values, especially now when technology is so prominent,” explained Silliman. “We want these kids to make connections and positively display their emotions. We want the campers to go home happy and tired.”

Outside of the traditional facility use, Camp Ingersoll also offers custom programs for schools, churches, the community and corporate organizations. These programs include the YMCA High Hopes program for team building, group picnics and field days. With these, the camp can stay affordable while the facilities remain up to the highest standard.

Portland Library News & Notes

Portland Library, 20 Freestone Ave., has announced the following events. Registration is required for all programs unless noted. To register and for full program descriptions, visit or call 860-342-6770. The library is also on Facebook and Instagram.

Hours: Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m.-8 p.m.; Friday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Masks are optional. Holiday Closing: The library will be closed Monday, Feb. 19, for Presidents Day.

Winter Reading Challenge for Kids – Reading is Fun Any Way You Slice It: Runs through Friday, March 1. This year’s theme is Pizza. Visit the library and get a pizza tray to hang on our bulletin board. Each time you check out materials in February (up to once per day), you’ll receive a slice to color and add it to your pizza. Once you’ve added eight slices and have a full pizza, you will win a small prize.

Youth Programs: LGBTQ+ Social and Support Groups: Teens are invited to social meet-ups at the library on the first Wednesday of the month at 6:30 p.m. Support groups will meet on the third Wednesday of the month, with a parent and caregiver support group running concurrently in another room at the library. For more information, contact Jenn Renk at 860-342-6770.

Snow Day: Tuesday, Feb. 20. Drop in during the day for a variety of snow day activities. No registration is required.

Pizza and Puzzles – Jigsaw Puzzle Competition: Saturday, Feb. 24, 10:30 a.m. Teams may consist of 2-4 people who will compete to finish the same 500-piece puzzle in the least amount of time. Space is limited to seven teams so register early.

Teen Events: Portland Pizza: Who’s the GOAT?: Tuesday, Feb. 27, 3:30 p.m. Sample slices from local pizza places and choices and decide who is the champion. Space is limited.

Chess with Michael Pelton: Mondays at 3 p.m., Feb. 26-March 25. All ages are invited to train to compete in the Portland Chess Battle Royale on March 26. Registration is not required, but is recommended.

Adult Programs: February Art Exhibit: The “Jennifer Hart: Snowpaintings” exhibit runs through Feb. 28.

Monthly Writers’ Café: Saturday, Feb. 17, 12:30 p.m., in the Van Beynum Room. The first hour is quiet, communal writing time, with the final 30 minutes set aside to chat about your project with fellow writers.

Seeds Wanted: Do you have some leftover seeds? Donations are welcome! Portland Library’s Seed Library is seeking seed donations for the spring and summer gardening seasons and is looking for your help to sort and repack donations for distribution. Lead volunteer (and new board member) Melissa Kelley will run two volunteer work sessions next month: from 12:30-2:30 p.m. Saturdays, March 2 and 9. Registration is requested but not required.

Book Discussions: Mystery Lovers Book Club: Tuesday, Feb. 20, 1 p.m., Down the River Unto the Sea by Walter Mosley will be discussed. Talk About Books: Tuesday March 5, 1 p.m. Foster & Small Things Like These by Claire Keegan will be discussed. 1st Thursday Night Book Club: Thursday, March 7, 6:30 p.m. The Female Persuasion by Meg Wolitzer will be discussed.

Happy Valentine’s Day!... Chatham Children’s Connection recently held a Valentine’s event for local children to create special valentines for the residents at Portland Care and Rehab. Over 75 valentines were created so that each resident would have a special treat to brighten up their day. Nicki Crawford, Vice President of Chatham Children’s Connection, is shown distributing the cards to Alysha Winiarski, Director of Recreation at Portland Care and Rehab. Chatham Children’s Connection is a nonprofit organization headquartered in Portland whose mission is to create no-cost positive events and activities for all youth and families in Portland. The all-volunteer board creates several events a year and is funded by donations from local individuals and businesses. Hey, Take a Hike!

Colchester Land Trust (CLT) will offer a Winter Hike to Day Pond Falls, a.k.a. Arnold's Ravine, on Sunday, Feb. 18, at 1 p.m. The hike is free for CLT members, and $5 for non-members.

The hike will begin at the Comstock Bridge parking lot off Route 16. The hike will be out and back for approximately 3.5 miles over moderate to steep terrain. The hike starts along the Salmon River then climbs to a beautiful overlook. The second stage is more moderate as you work your way toward the falls.

Day Pond Falls drop a total of 40 feet with the tallest being 10 feet. Hiking poles recommended. If there is significant snowfall, bring your snow shoes.

For more information, contact hike leader Lisa Hageman at 860-918-1537 or lterillhageman@comcast.net. Visit www.colchesterland-trust.org to register or to pay in advance.

CLT is an all-volunteer nonprofit organization that works to permanently protect open space in Colchester. Visit the aforementioned website to join or donate.

Bacon to Host 'Tree-Plenish'

Bacon Academy environmental science students are hosting a native tree sale and planting event. Tree-Plenish is a nonprofit organization run exclusively by college students to promote the planting of native tree species.

Residents may choose to have volunteers deliver and plant saplings in their yards, or they can pick them up at Bacon. This year's event will take place Saturday, April 20. Sapling sales will be available online only, from now through March 20. Saplings are $5 each.

The Bacon students have a goal of 402 saplings to be planted locally. This will offset 482 tons of carbon emissions created by the school building, they said.

According to Bacon, native trees sequester carbon, and provide shade, shelter, and food sources for native organisms that non-native species do not provide.

There are three tree species to choose from: American Sycamore, Red maple, and Eastern Redbud. Sycamores prefer loamy soil that has a good supply of groundwater. Eastern redbuds are flowering trees that grow more compactly and provide spring flowers. Red maples support many species of birds and butterflies as well as being tapped for maple syrup. All saplings are bare root (not potted) and will range in size based on the species ordered.

The link to this year's event is tpevents.org/school/4019. Information regarding how to purchase saplings, volunteer, or sponsor this event can be found at the website.

Westchester Church News

School District Makes Pitch for Turf Field

By Michael Sinkewicz

A turf field for Colchester? Momentum for new athletic fields has continued to grow in the community, culminating this week after the Board of Education (BOE) reviewed a presentation outlining the condition the fields at Bacon Academy High School.

During its Feb. 13 meeting, the BOE listened to district leaders who showcased the demand and necessity for upgrading the school's athletic complex, which has fallen into disrepair.

Superintendent of Schools Daniel Sullivan III was joined by Bacon Academy Principal Amy Begué and Athletic Director Kevin Burke in over-viewing poor condition of the school's fields, appearing to make the argument for possibly installing a turf field, or a new natural grass renovation.

The district's presentation didn't include any cost estimates for turf installation, or what the community's contribution would entail. There was also limited details on the type or number of upgrades the district was recommending. Additional information is expected to be provided at a future BOE meeting on Feb. 22, if FieldTurf — a company Sullivan said had already assessed the high school's complex — was available to provide an overview.

Sullivan and Begué could not immediately be reached for comment before press time.

First Selectman Bernie Dennler III told the Rivereast that he was aware in advance of the district's presentation and that field safety, especially at the high school, has become a "major topic." "Everybody understands that we need to make some sort of improvement," he said. "I think it's clear we identified a problem."

The first selectman added that finding the right solution will be collaborative effort between the town and school district.

Earlier this month, the Board of Selectmen (BOS) established a new five-member Recreation Needs and Coordination Committee charged with evaluating town and school recreation assets. At the top of its list of priorities to examine, Dennler said, is the feasibility of a new turf field in the community.

While membership for that committee is expected to be appointed in the weeks ahead, once it formally begins its work, the BOE's presentation will likely be item one on the agenda.

"It's great that we a proposal on the table," Dennler said. "Let's get it in front of the committee."

Sullivan stated during the BOE meeting this week that he was simply seeking approval for the district to bring in a company to provide more context regarding a potentially substantial undertaking, which due to the expected price tag, will likely require taxpayer approval at a town-wide referendum. The total cost of turf fields can range drastically from hundreds of thousands of dollars, to millions.

Board member Donna Antonacci noted that it would be difficult to move ahead without more "detail information."

What was presented on Tuesday evening largely served as the backdrop for why some form of an upgrade was necessary. The district included "community perspectives" highlight, and potentially give further credibility, to the idea of turf fields.

Dave Shea, a longtime coach at Bacon Academy, is quoted in the slideshow as saying that the town's fields are amongst the poorest in the athletic conference.

"It's an embarrassment to our students and parents," he stated, adding that "Colchester needs to catch up."

Several local sports leaders also spoke live during the meeting, conveying their thoughts on the field conditions.

Skip Starks, the varsity boys soccer coach, expressed that the fields were "outdated" and "dangerous and embarrassing at best."

Lacrosse coach Brian Martin added that his squad couldn't play state tournament games in 2019 because of the inadequate fields. He described the athletic complex as a "competitive disadvantage" and a "morale issue" for students. A change, he said, was necessary.

"Our kids deserve it." The remarks made during the meeting align with interviews conducted by the Rivereast with other local sports officials.

"Nobody wants to play here," Tim Daniels, president of Colchester Youth Soccer, previously said. He explained that the Bacon Academy High School varsity girls soccer team — which recently won a state championship — had to play their senior night game at Lyman Memorial High School in Lebanon.

Beyond the cancellation or movement of game locations, Burke explained that drainage issues at the fields often lead to at least 5-10 outdoor practices being canceled in both the fall and spring sports seasons. The lacrosse and football programs have had to rent practice space at a facility in Montville to allow early-season practices.

The absence of lights also impacts school sports. Begué said that early afternoon start-times for games has led to student athletes being pulled out of class.

Listed amongst its reasons for turf, the district stated the fields would not worn and torn. For example, the patches in front of the soccer nets become mostly dirt as the grass gets repeatedly trampled and when it rains, those spots turn into mud.

Lights, meanwhile, would extend the field use hours by 50%.

The district labeled Bacon Academy as an anomaly; in Colchester's district reference group — a collection of schools with similar socioeconomic conditions — 21 out of 26 schools have turf fields and 23 of out 26 have lighted fields. There is only one school besides Bacon Academy that doesn't either, which is East Granby.

According to the presentation, the current annual cost to maintain the fields is over $35,000.

Bacon Storytelling Show to Benefit Robotics Team

Bacon Academy will host a storytelling show Wednesday, Feb. 21 (snow date is Feb. 22) at 7 p.m., in the school auditorium. The show will benefit the school's FIRST Robotics Team, which is currently hard at work on the 2024 season.

The show will be headlined by storytellers Arnie Pritchard and John Melmed, who will relate true personal stories from their school years and adult lives. Stories are best suited for ages 12 and over.

Tickets are $10 per adult and $5 per student, and additional donations are welcome. Donations of $100 or more will purchase priority seating for six.

Boy Scout Pasta Dinner

Boy Scout Troop 13 will hold its second annual Pasta Dinner Saturday, March 2, from 4-7 p.m., at the St. Andrew Parish Center, located at 128 Norwich Ave. In case of inclement weather, the date will be moved to Sunday, March 3.

Both dine-in and take-out meals will be available. Preorder your meal at troop-13pastadinner.square.site for a discounted rate. Meal prices at the door are $15 for adults and $12 for seniors; children under 5 are free. The meal will include a salad, bread, and dessert. Drinks are available for dine-in patrons only.

Proceeds help support the various troop activities throughout the year.

Honoring Black History Month

Colchester's Openness to Respecting Equity (CORE) Commission and the Colchester Senior Center are hosting a Community Book Club all February in honor of Black History Month, and the public is welcome to participate. The book selected is called The Sum of Us: What Racism Costs Everyone and How We Can Prosper Together.

Copies are available at Cragin or can be purchased through Amazon. There will be three dates in February to discuss the book, including daily trivia questions about the 2024 Black History Month theme, African American and the Arts, and a calendar of events on the town website, www.colchesterct.gov.

Incoming Kindergarten Story Time

Colchester Elementary School will host the Incoming Kindergarten Story Time program Thursdays, March 14 and April 18, for 4- and 5-year-old Colchester children who will be entering kindergarten during the 2024-25 school year.

During each session, children will listen to books read by kindergarten teachers, while parents learn about the registration process, the kindergarten curriculum, readiness expectations, the school day, school policies and transportation. A question-and-answer period will be available at each session.

The program will be held each month from 11-11:30 a.m., in the CES media center. Parents and children are invited to attend multiple story times. Topics for parent information change each month. No pre-registration is required.

Community Theatre to Get Kinky

Colchester Community Theatre (CCT) will present Kinky Boots through special arrangements with Music Theatre International, Feb. 16-18 at Bacon Academy.

In the musical, Charlie Price has reluctantly inherited his father's shoe factory, which is on the verge of bankruptcy. Trying to live up to his father's legacy and save his family business, Charlie finds inspiration in the form of Lola, a fabulous entertainer in need of some sturdy stilettos. As they work to turn the factory around, this unlikely pair find that they have more in common than they realized... and discover that when you change your mind, you can change your whole world.

Performance dates are Friday, Feb. 16, at 7 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 17, at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.; and Sunday, Feb. 18, at 2 p.m. All shows are at the Bacon Academy auditorium, 611 Norwich Ave. Tickets are $18 for adults and $14 for seniors (65+) and children (age 12 and under). Preferred seating tickets (a maximum of 60 each performance) are available for $28 each. Preferred seating ticketholders will be asked to arrive at least a half hour before performance times as entrance to obtain seats of their choice will be allowed before the general audience. Seating for the general audience will take place 20-30 minutes before the performance time.

Several ticket purchase options are available: 1) Online ticket sales (credit card only) are available through ShowTix4U - see additional information on the 'Buy Tickets' page at www.colchestercommunitytheatre.com.

2) In-person ticket sales (cash and check only) are available at Wagging Tails Pet Shop (95C Linwood Ave.) and Gifts on the Green (44 Main St.) during their regular business hours.

3) Tickets will be available at the door (Cash, Check, or Venmo) on performance days subject to availability.

Advance ticket purchase is recommended. All ticket sales are final - no refunds or exchanges. Make checks payable to Colchester Community Theatre, Inc.

CCT is selling advertisement space in its digital program as well as sponsorship levels to offset the cost of costumes, sets and props construction. For more information, call producer Donna Brown at 860-639-9315.

In case of inclement weather, visit CCT's Facebook page and website for updates.

College Football Awaits Bacon's All-Conference Lineman

By Josh Howard

Bacon Academy senior P.J. Walsh described his high school football career as a "roller coaster."

Now, his wild ride is headed to new heights. "I am beyond blessed to announce my commitment to play Division II football at The University of New Haven," Walsh declared on Jan. 24. "I would like to thank my family, friends, teammates and coaches, who without I would not be where I am today as a person and a player."

Walsh is coming off an award-winning senior season at Bacon Academy in which he earned First Team All-Eastern Connecticut Conference (ECC) honors for his work in the trenches for a talented Bobcats' offensive line.

Bacon Academy head coach Bill Chaffin said Walsh was a "staple" of the team's potent running game that continually overpowered opponents this season.

"We would always run the ball to his side," Chaffin said of Walsh, also a team captain. "He's a good kid and was always willing to help with younger kids and guide them in the right direction. We'll miss that next year."

The way Walsh's football career at the local high school finished was vastly different from the way it started.

After playing youth football for the Colchester Cougars in middle school, Walsh's first season at Bacon Academy was nixed because of the pandemic.

Things continued to take a downward turn during his sophomore season in 2021 as the team lost their first seven games and then were forced to forfeit the final three games because of a Title IX investigation levied against the football program.

That's when Chaffin entered the picture, and the coaster began to tick upwards.

As a junior, Walsh was an integral part in Chaffin's rebuilding process as the team was competitive in most games, winning one.

Walsh and fellow all-conference guard Kevin Claffey formed a formidable one-two punch on the left side of the offensive line.

This fall, the progress continued as Walsh became a bona fide stud at offensive tackle, powering a potent ground game as the Bobcats won three of their first six games.

Heading into his final year at Bacon Academy, Walsh knew what he put on film would determine his future on the football fields.

"I knew I wanted to play college football, so I knew I had to really perform," recalled Walsh.

The team would end with four straight losses, yet the final two losses were one-score contests, including a 27-21 loss to RHAM in the season finale.

Despite being on the losing end of the "Battle for the Rail," Walsh reflected fondly on his final high school game, calling it his favorite memory on the local fields.

"I played football with these seniors for seven years, so just being out there was special," recalled Walsh. "It was bittersweet. When it was sweet, it was really sweet."

Walsh said the players left the field with their heads held high in defeat because they had weathered the early turbulence and stuck together.

"It was a fun ride and when I really look back I know it's one of the best years of my life," added Walsh. "It sucks that we lost, but it was still a feeling you can never get back — it was like my high school football life flashed before my eyes in that game."

Along with possessing an ideal frame, standing nearly six and a half feet tall, Walsh also has football in his blood.

His dad, Patrick Walsh, was a standout player at the University of Connecticut and later signed with the Jacksonville Jaguars before playing a season for the London Monarchs of the World Football League.

P.J. Walsh, a senior at Bacon Academy, has committed to the University of New Haven for college football. Walsh is flanked by his mom, Karyn, and dad, Patrick, along with his sister, Delaney in the background.

Patrick Walsh was also on Chaffin's staff at Bacon Academy. It was an on- and off-the-field opportunity that the father-son duo embraced.

"He taught me so much," P.J. Walsh said of his father. "I will want to coach my kids because how he coached me. I want to have that sports relationship with my son or daughter because of him."

After growing up his entire life in Colchester, the soon-to-be graduate expressed that he is ready for something different.

Walsh said he always knew he wanted to continue to play football, but the question was where?

His checklist included two main things. He wanted a program with a history of winning and a college with a sense of community.

He noted that he got both in New Haven, saying, "I would have been stupid to turn it down."

"They win a lot and there is this connection between coaches and players, players and students, fans and players that is really strong," noted Walsh, who attended the team's homecoming game this past fall. "The campus is so beautiful, and I knew it was a place I wanted to be for four or five years. It's not too big and not too small, it worked out perfectly."

On the gridiron, the Chargers of New Haven have had 13 consecutive winning seasons, which includes a pair of undefeated seasons and six Northeast-10 Conference Championships.

Chaffin said that Walsh's ability to play all five positions on the offensive line will be a luxury for the coaching staff in New Haven run by head coach Chris Pincince, who has led the program since 2014.

"Over the last two years he really worked on his technique and footwork and all those things that are required to be a high-level offensive lineman," added Chaffin.

Walsh understands that he may get redshirted his first year in college, giving him an extra year of eligibility, but that won't be a problem for someone who wants to study sports marketing and eyes a Master of Business Administration (MBA) in the future.

"My dad has always told me that the bond you have with your scout team players that you go to college with is a bond that you'll have forever," stated Walsh.

Off the field, Walsh said he is also ready to meet people from all over the country and beyond as well as live in a city that is famous for its gourmet food.

"I'm excited to have a few good meals," joked Walsh, who considers Pepe's Pizza the gold standard.

Although he is ready to take his next ride, Walsh said he will always be grateful for his time in Colchester and the opportunity it has presented, saying he feels he and the rest of the Class of 2024 is leaving the football program "on good terms."

"It took everyone," added Walsh. "Coach Chaffin knew what he was getting himself into and he knew what it took to rebuild a program, and I very much thank him for what he did."

DeCaprio Announces Re-Election Bid

Republican Mark DeCaprio has announced he is running for reelection for state representative in the 48th District, which includes Bozrah, Colchester, Franklin and part of Lebanon.

DeCaprio, who was elected to his first term in 2022, currently serves on the state legislature's Appropriations, Public Health and Transportation Committees.

"I am running for re-election because I love our state and have a desire to serve our community, help people wherever I can, and make our state and the 48th District a better place for our future — a future which is our children and grandchildren," Rep. DeCaprio said. "In the coming months, I will be meeting and speaking to our friends and neighbors, along with business people all around the 48th District to better understand the issues and challenges we face. If I have the privilege to be reelected in November, I will continue to work diligently to represent the 48th District and will work to the best of my ability to help solve problems and bring the needed necessary recovery back to Connecticut. I am hopeful to again earn your support so we all will work together to make positive change for our communities and the state."

During the 2023 legislative session, DeCaprio voted in favor of the state budget, and also voted in favor of legislation that supports law enforcement, enhancing safeguards for survivors of domestic violence, as well as financial protection for senior citizens. Locally, DeCaprio successfully advocated for $500,000 in funding for the Norton Park Project in Colchester.

DeCaprio currently serves on the Lebanon Board of Selectmen and had been elected prior to local offices, including the Zoning Board of Appeals and the Lebanon Board of Education. He is a United States Navy Submarine Service veteran, and earned a Bachelor of Science degree in biology from Eastern Connecticut State University and a Master of Public Health from the University of Connecticut. Most recently, he worked and retired from the Connecticut Department of Energy & Environmental Protection, with the last 20 years working as a division director and 15 years as the administrator for the Connecticut State Emergency Response Commission. DeCaprio volunteered for a number of years at a local soup kitchen in Willimantic.

Area Legislators Celebrate Start of Session

Area state representatives Christie Carpino (R-32), Mark DeCaprio (R-48), Irene Haines (R-34) and Steve Weir (R-55) Hebron convened with her colleagues in the General Assembly as they marked the start of the 2024 legislative session.

Carpino's district includes the Rivereast town of Portland; DeCaprio's, the Rivereast town of Colchester; Haines', the Rivereast town of East Hampton; and Weir, the Rivereast towns of Andover, Hebron and Marlborough.

The representatives submitted the following joint statement regarding the start of session:

"We are excited to begin the 2024 legislative session as we prepare to address issues such as crime, education funding, and especially affordability. This session will be shorter, primarily including legislation associated with last year's state budget agreement. We look forward to collaborating with our colleagues and proposing solutions that promote affordability and safety statewide, while continuing to prioritize our concerns at home."

The 2024 legislative session will conclude on May 8th and a list of bills, deadlines, and other information can be found at: www.cga.ct.gov. For more information, contact their offices at 860-240-8700, or by using the following emails: Christie.Carpino@housegop.ct.gov, Mark.DeCaprio@housegop.ct.gov, Irene.Haines@housegop.ct.gov or Steve.Weir@housegop.ct.gov.

From the State Senator's Desk

With this month's start of the legislative session at the State Capitol, there will be hundreds of bills being considered by lawmakers through the spring that can bring significant changes to our state. It's important for people to make their voices heard, especially if the legislation could impact them directly. Here's how you can testify at public hearings and submit testimony for bills.

Whether you're tracking the progress of a bill online at cga.ct.gov or saw a news story about a proposed change that caught your interest, you have every right to tell legislators how you feel about it. You can easily testify at a public hearing in person by visiting the Capitol on the day it's scheduled, but given that work, school and life can cause complications to such plans, you can also submit testimony online or testify through Zoom.

When you are aware of a bill that interests you, you can sign up to receive bill tracker updates on cga.ct.gov under "Bill Information." Once you do that, you'll get regular updates on how legislators vote on the bill in committee and, importantly, will get updates whenever a hearing is scheduled. If you want to participate in-person at such an event, hearings will take place at 300 Capitol Avenue in Hartford, the Legislative Office Building (located next to the Capitol building).

If you'd prefer to testify via Zoom, when the public hearing is scheduled, there should be an "agenda" listing on the website as well as further information on committee websites. (There are 22 committees in the General Assembly where lawmakers are focused on different topics from education to judicial to veteran's affairs matters.) To participate in a hybrid public hearing, you will need to pre-register with information on that agenda or in a bulletin announcing it. Make sure your name and contact information is correct in filling it out. In addition to Zoom, you can also testify over the phone.

Submitting written testimony is a bit easier, as committee websites will contain instructions on how to do so. You will generally need to submit your information and the bill in question you wish to testify on.

In all of these cases, you will need to make your argument quickly. Try to remain focused on the reasons why you support, oppose, or wish to make changes to a given bill. You will likely only have a few minutes to speak, and you may be asked questions by legislators if testifying over Zoom, phone or in-person. Public hearings are livestreamed online on YouTube and the Connecticut Network.

As a lawmaker, I can say that the more we hear from our constituents, the better-prepared we are to take action in a way that supports every resident of our state. Please feel free to reach out to us whenever you can; we appreciate your feedback.

Bacon Academy senior Carson Brown won a conference championship on Feb. 10, pinning his opponent to win the 165-lbs. bracket at the ECC championships.

Standout Athletes of the Week

By Josh Howard

Here is a double dose of Rivereast Standouts of the Week for the week of Feb. 5-11:

Carson Brown - Bacon Academy (Wrestling): Brown won a conference championship, taking home first place in the 165-pound bracket at the Eastern Connecticut Conference (ECC) championships at Killingly High School on Feb. 10. Brown, a senior, entered the tourney as the No. 2-ranked wrestler in his weight division, before winning a pair of matches and pinning top-seeded Devon Powers of Waterford in the championship bout. Brown and the Bobcats now compete at the Class S state championships on Friday, Feb. 16, and Saturday, Feb. 17, at Killingly High School.

Troy Johnson - Bacon Academy (Basketball): Johnson averaged 20 points and 10 rebounds per game as the Bobcats won three of four games to qualify for the Division IV state tournament. Johnson, a sophomore, also averaged four steals and two blocks per game, while shooting 86% from the foul line. The Bobcats close the regular season tonight (Friday, Feb. 16), hosting Killingly at 6:30 p.m.

Gracie DeRing - Portland High School (Basketball): DeRing, a sophomore, posted her first career double-double, scoring a season-high 12 points and grabbing 18 rebounds as the Highlanders beat Westbrook 44-36 on Feb. 10. It marked Portland's first conference win and also avenged an earlier loss (40-25) to Westbrook in early January.

Lily Tabellone and Samuel LaMalfa - Portland High School (Track and Field): Tabellone and LaMalfa each brought home individual state championships at the Class S Indoor Track and Field finals on Feb. 9. Tabellone, a senior, won the 1000 meters with a time of 3:05.88, holding off runner-up Briana Belanger (3:06.94) of Thomaston. LaMalfa, a junior, won the 600 meters with a time of 1:25.98, besting runner-up Charles Dalles (1:26.60) of Coganchoag. Both Tabellone and LaMalfa qualified for the State Open, slated for Saturday, Feb. 17, at the Floyd Little Athletic Center in New Haven, starting at noon.

Nina Krawczyk - RHAM High School (Basketball): Krawczyk, a sophomore, scored a game-high 22 points, including a go-ahead bucket in overtime as the Raptors beat South Windsor 53-51 on Feb. 9. With the score tied at 51 in the extra session, Krawczyk grabbed and offensive rebound before scoring for what turned out to be the game-winner in a dramatic triumph that qualified the Raptors for the Class MM tournament, starting Tuesday, Feb. 27.

Samuel Fortin - RHAM High School (Track & Field): Fortin ran a personal-best 2:42.03, finishing fourth in the 1000 meters at the Central Connecticut Conference (CCC) Indoor Track and Field Championships at the Floyd Athletic Center on Jan. 27. Fortin, a senior, then duplicated his feat by placing fourth at the Class M state championship on Feb. 10, qualifying him for the State Open set to take place Saturday, Feb. 17, at the Floyd Athletic Center, starting at noon.

Liana Salamone - East Hampton High School (Basketball): Salamone scored 33 points as the Bellringers blew by Cromwell 60-33 on Feb. 9. Salamone, a junior, is the reigning Shoreline Conference Player of the Year and is the leading scorer for a Bellringers squad that has not lost this season and aims for a fifth straight Shoreline Conference title and looks to repeat as Class S state champions.

Evan LoPresti - East Hampton High School (Track & Field): LoPresti tied for second overall in the 1000 meters at the Class S Indoor Track and Field State Championships on Feb. 9. LoPresti, a junior, ran a 2:38.82 to cross the line the same time as Matthew Kraszewski of Hale Ray and finished behind only Dylan Bathrick (2:36.42) of Cromwell. LoPresti's time qualified him for the State Open, taking place Saturday, Feb. 17, at the Floyd Athletic Center starting at noon.

Obituaries

Lebanon

Gail Scalise

Gail Scalise, 73, of Lebanon, passed away Wednesday, Feb. 7, at Hartford Hospital. Born Dec. 29, 1950, in Hartford, she was the daughter of the late Normand LaFontaine and Ruth (Lava) LaFontaine.

Gail was a hardworking woman who ran a small business, and loved helping her customers. Although she was small in stature, she had a bold, fiery spirit. Gail always said what was on her mind and would do absolutely anything for those that she loved. She fought bravely against cancer for many years, and is finally at peace.

She is survived by her husband, Frank; daughter, Kimberly Benevides; grandchildren, Alexis and John Benevides; brother, Robert LaFontaine; and numerous other extended family and friends.

Calling hours were held Thursday, Feb. 15, at the Aurora-McCarthy Funeral Home, 167 Old Hartford Rd., Colchester. Guests will gather today, Friday, Feb. 16, from 10-11 a.m., at the funeral home, for a chapel service at 11 a.m.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that memorial donations be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place Memphis, TN 38105 (www.stjude.org).

Hebron

Curt Paul Munson, Jr.

Curt Paul Munson Jr., 78, of Hebron, passed away unexpectedly at home Tuesday, Jan. 23. He was born Dec. 2, 1945, to the late Curt and Nancy Breniser Munson in the Bronx, New York. After graduating from Pine Ridge High School in New Jersey, he earned a bachelor's degree from Delaware Valley College in Pennsylvania. While in college, he met his future bride, Jeanne. Curt and Jeanne were married Nov. 23, 1967, and began their life together in Connecticut.

Curt was a science teacher for 35 years. He started teaching in Moodus, at Nathan Hale-Ray School, then moved to teach in Middletown, at Central Middle School, Keigwin Middle School, and Woodrow Wilson High School. Not one to slow down in retirement, he worked at Lynch Toyota in Manchester, and then was a frequent substitute teacher at RHAM junior and senior high schools in Hebron.

Curt was a hardworking, fun-loving, joke-telling, people person with multiple hobbies that ranged from HO scale trains, painting, restoring a wide range of vehicles (his 40S Willys Jeep and John Deere tractors were favorites), participating in Revolutionary and Civil War reenactments, and the Connecticut Military Vehicle Collectors Club. He was also an avid fan of the RHAM High School girls' volleyball and basketball teams.

Besides his wife Jeanne, he leaves two daughters, Nancy and her husband Greg, and Amanda and her husband Jeff; grandchildren, Thomas and his wife Shaeli, Caleb, and Christopher; and his loving coonhound, Molly.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, Feb. 24, at 2 p.m., at Gilead Congregational Church, 672 Gilead St., Hebron.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in his memory to Native American Veterans Assistance, P.O. Box 5053, Pine Ridge, SD 57770.

Marlborough

James Allen Williams

James (Jim) Allen Williams, 80, of North Palm Beach, Fla., and Marlborough, passed away peacefully Sunday, Jan. 28, after a long battle with Parkinson's. He fought his fight, as he did with everything, with grace, humor, and dignity.

He is survived by his loving wife, Vanessa Williams; son-in-law, Mark Holmes; brother, Peter Williams; sister-in-law, Jean Williams; and nephews, Chris and Scott Williams. He was predeceased by his parents, Allen and Jane Williams.

Jim served honorably in the Air Force and attended Terryville High School, Terryville, and Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University, Daytona Beach, Fla. Jim was passionate about flying and had a 50-year career as a corporate pilot for United Technologies. His exemplary career was topped off with special recognition from the FAA. Jim was awarded "The Wright Brothers MASTER PILOT Award" for Fifty Years of Dedicated Service in Aviation Safety. He was also an avid boater, fisherman, hunter, and overall enthusiast about life. Jim was such a kind and caring soul and was loved by many. Jim loved being a jokester and infusing humor into everything he could. He believed life was for living fully every day. Jim wanted to enjoy saying his goodbyes while he was living, so he had a Legacy Memorial of Life in 2022, where he was joined by friends and family to recall beautiful memories.

The family will have a private interment at the Connecticut State Veterans Cemetery in Middletown. We are grateful for the outpouring of love and support and extend our heartfelt gratitude to everyone who has reached out to offer condolences and assistance.

To continue Jim's legacy, the family would encourage donations to the New England Air Museum, 36 Perimeter Rd., Windsor Locks, CT 06096, in his name to promote aviation and support future aviators. Please label and direct donations to the Jim Williams Fund.

The Aurora-McCarthy Funeral Home of Colchester is in care of the arrangements. To share a memory of Jim and to view a short tribute celebrating his life and contributions, please visit www.auroramccarthy.com.

Andover

William Dieter Hegener

William Dieter Hegener, at the age of 86, passed away Tuesday, Feb. 6, in the comfort of his home surrounded by his family in Andover. He was a beloved husband, father and friend and will be sorely missed by all that knew him.

Bill was born in 1937 in Darby, Pa., to the late Joseph Hegener and Adelheid (Sautter) Hegener. Both parents emigrated through Ellis Island from Germany in 1928. Bill was close to his younger sister, Diane. They were protective of each other and looked out for one another as they grew up. He attended Norwell High School in Massachusetts and graduated in 1955. Bill spent his young adult summer years in Humarock Beach, Mass., as a lifeguard, where he fell in love with his late wife Nancy (Lee) Hegener. They got married and immediately moved to Morgantown, W. Va. Bill went on to attend West Virginia State University, he graduated in 1967 with a master's degree in chemical engineering. He finished school all while raising three children, Jay, Mindy, and Suzanne.

The whole family relocated to Andover in 1967. Bill started to work for the State of Connecticut DEP and retired as director. Almost 40 years ago he founded and was the first director of the Oil and Chemical Spill Response Division which later became the Emergency Response and Spill Prevention Division. Bill was the architect of the division and built Connecticut's spill response program from the ground up. Bill was an incredibly committed worker and dedicated boss.

Bill later rekindled love again when he met and married his wife, Trudy Gress. He took a city girl and showed her the country life and they enjoyed their time together traveling, hunting, and going on open sea fishing trips. Together they adopted and raised their daughter Marissa.

In his spare time Bill enjoyed recreations like hunting, fishing, and gardening. He loved listening to old country bluegrass music and singing along. Bill also was very passionate about UConn women's basketball; if the girls were playing, everyone in the Rolodex got a call with the time and channel! Bill was a lifelong active member and avid volunteer at Fin, Fur, and Feather Club and Skungamuag Fish & Game Club.

Bill loved spending time with his kids and grandchildren, teaching them all the good things in life but especially how to fish. Bill was extremely intelligent being able to add great insight to any conversation. Bill also was a great friend, offering a helping hand to those in need. He loved all animals and often gave back to the community.

Bill is predeceased by his wife Nancy and stepdaughter Kim. Bill is survived by his wife Trudy, his son Jay and daughters Mindy, Suzanne and Marissa; his stepdaughter, Dawn; his sister, Diane; his grandchildren, Jesse, Jason, Jillian and Jenna. He was lovingly called PaPa by his grandchildren. We will miss you.

Calling hours were Sunday, Feb. 11, with a memorial service following, at the Holmes-Watkins Funeral Home, located at 400 Main St., Manchester. A luncheon was held directly after at Georgina's Restaurant (275 Bolton Turnpike, Bolton).

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations in William's memory may be made to: Andover Fire Department (11 School Rd, Andover, CT 06232) or Andover Food Pantry (PO Box 55, Andover, CT 06232).

To leave an online condolence, or visit William's tribute, please visit www.holmeswatkins.com.

Registration for KinderRHAMa Preschool

AHM Youth and Family Services' KinderRHAMa Preschool, located at RHAM High School, will be registering for the 2024-25 school year starting in March. Children ages 3-5 can attend the program. Children must be 3 by Sept. 1 and toilet-trained to attend.

Two experienced teachers staff the program and RHAM students assist in the classroom. The program follows the Early Learning Development Standards from the State of Connecticut for preschool-aged children. Regular activities include circle/story time, outside play, science and math-based activities, and daily arts and crafts projects.

There will be part-day and full-day options. The 3-year-old program will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8:30 a.m.-noon, and the 4-year-old program will be held Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 8:30 a.m.-1 p.m. The full-day option is offered from 7 a.m.-3 p.m. Limited spaces are available to have your child attend five days a week from 7 a.m.-3 p.m.

The two-day/week, 8:30 a.m.-noon, program is $2,345/year; the three-day/week, 8:30 a.m.-1 p.m., program is $4,205/year; and the five-day/week, 7 a.m.-3 p.m., program is $6,990/year. The two-day/week program with extended day (T/Th from 7 a.m.-3 p.m.) is $3,390/year, and the three-day/week program with extended day (M/W/F from 7 a.m.-3 p.m.), is $5,085/year. Tuition can be paid in 10 installments. Financial aid may be available for families who qualify.

Initial registration for the public will be online starting Monday, March 25, through RecDesk, at ahmyouth.recdesk.com/Community/Home. Families will be informed as to whether their child has a space within one week. If they have a space, families will be asked to pay a $45 registration fee and $150 deposit to hold that space.

For more information visit ahmyouth.org/programs-services/kinderrhama-preschool-program, or contact Becky Murray at beckym@ahmyouth.org or 860-228-0871.

Difficult Behavior in Young Children

AHM Youth and Family Services will offer a workshop for early care providers on "Dealing with Difficult Behavior in Young Children" on Monday, March 5, from 7-8 p.m., via Zoom.

The workshop will cover how to deal with tantrums, how to set consequences effectively, helping children to manage emotions, sharing, and other issues that arise. This program is free for participants, and care providers will receive a gift for participating.

Email Becky at Beckym@ahmyouth.org or Ashlee at ashleep@ahmyouth.org to register and receive the Zoom link.

(in two separate leagues) and danced a ton — often traveling to New York to maximize the fun.

Perhaps the key component was something else entirely: Las Vegas.

From 1987-98, Viola lived in Nevada after moving rather spontaneously to Sin City with her third husband, Frank Viola — a man she previously knew earlier in her life through dancing.

The way Bantle remembers it, her mom packed up the car with what could fit — she stored or sold the rest — and drove thousands of miles to her new home. Initially, the trip was described as a one-year visit, but it ultimately turned into Viola managing a 65-unit apartment complex for close to 12 years.

"That kind of blew us all away," Bantle joked.

The move and marriage took place when Viola was well into her '60s and proved to be a beautiful experience. Casino culture — specifically the craps tables — fit her intoxicating personality.

"That was the highlight of her life," Bantle said. "She deserved the happiness."

When returning back to Connecticut, Viola brought the fun with her. Bantle recalled one excursion when her mom rented a limo for the family to ride to Atlantic City, N.J.

"She was always looking for stuff to do and keeping people on their toes," Bantle said.

At her previous nursing home, casino-night was the theme for Viola's 99th birthday. This time, Bantle was hesitant to plan the party after entering a new facility, but the staff insisted on organizing a gathering to celebrate the occasion. Father Mickey Danyluk, who attended the prior celebration, will be doing a blessing this time as well.

If Vegas was Viola's not-so-secret home, her other love has to be "Chubby," her cat. Growing up, she had a cat named Chubby. Then, as Bantle was a kid, they also had a cat named Chubby, who was essentially kidnapped by her parents. There was always a cat outside near Bantle's childhood home, and her dad would sneak out to feed it; the real owner didn't appear to pay much attention to his pet. Eventually, Viola snatched the cat and brought it home.

Nearly three years ago, Bantle bought her mom a robotic cat, which she'd bring into the nursing home in a carrier. Her mom asked, "Is it real?" Bantle replied, "If you want it to be."

You can probably guess the name of that cat too.

"The name has carried on her entire life," Bantle said.

Technically, robotic Chubby's motor died, and now her mom enjoys "Chubby II."

As 100 approaches, Bantle reflected on her relationship with her mom. Because her brother is 15 years older than her, and her father passed away when she was just 12, the two formed a "dynamic duo."

At Viola's third wedding, she handed the bouquet of flowers to Bantle. Not long after, she married her own husband.

"She foresaw something," Bantle recalled. "It brought me good luck."

Viola operated a luncheonette in Stamford called "Town Coffee House," with Bantle's father when she was a young kid. As a four-year-old, Bantle would hop onto the counter and enjoy a sundae. As a proud Italian cook, Viola has her signature dishes. Bantle's favorite: eggplant parmigiana — she wouldn't eat anyone else's!

Take Ethics Seriously

To the Editor:

I am currently serving as the chair of a town commission, after having been a member on that commission for several years. Although I am writing about my experiences during my tenure on that commission, I am not speaking for the commission.

Several years ago, an application came before the commission that I thought might affect my property, so I submitted a request for a ruling to the town Ethics Commission, as stipulated in the annual ethics training we are required to complete. I never got a response, not even an acknowledgment that they had received my request.

As I mentioned, every town board member and commissioner is required to take ethics training each year. They are also required to send a certificate of completion to the Ethics Commission once they have completed the training. When I mailed in my certificate one year, the Post Office returned it to me because the post office box had been closed. I went to the first selectman's office and was told that the rental for the box had not been paid.

These events make me wonder how dedicated the members of the Ethics Commission are to doing their job. I realize all appointed commission members are volunteers and that many of them have full-time jobs in addition to their service on their respective commissions. However, I believe the Ethics Commission has an inherent obligation to set an example for the other boards and commissions in the town.

Sincerely,
Martha Taylor Dumas – Portland

Note: Dumas is chair of the Portland Inland Wetlands Commission, but said she is writing as an individual.

Hiyo Silver!

To the Editor:

Do you remember the Lone Ranger and his horse, Silver? Well, the Silver I am introducing here is a bat, and it's a "lone ranger" too.

Silver-haired bats (Lasiurus noctivagans) are among the most common bats in forested areas of America, especially old growth forests. They form maternity colonies – or may roost singly – almost exclusively in tree cavities or small hollows, and they switch roosts throughout the maternity season. A female of breeding age gives birth to two pups each season, with an equal sex ratio.

This medium-sized bat is predominantly black, including wings and fur, with white-tipped hairs, thus giving the bat a frosted appearance. It weighs around 8–12 g, with a 12" wingspan.

Because silver-haired bats are dependent upon roosts in old growth areas, maintaining forested corridors are important to sustaining them, they require an abundance of dead and dying trees. Unfortunately, forest management practices have fallen far short of providing that necessity.

Silver-haired bats hibernate mainly in forested areas, though they may make long migrations from their summer forest roosts to winter forest sites. Typical hibernation roosts include small tree hollows, beneath exfoliating bark, in woodpiles, and in the crevices of cliff faces. Occasionally they will hibernate in cave entrances, especially in northern regions of their range.

Silver-haired bats feed on many insects that are pests to humans, agriculture and forestry. Even though they depend upon old-growth forest areas for roosts, they feed predominantly in disturbed areas, at treetop levels, in small clearings and along roadways or watercourses. Though their diets vary widely, these bats feed chiefly on small, soft-bodied insects and arachnids, including flies, midges, leafhoppers, moths, mosquitoes, beetles, crane flies, ants, crickets, and spiders.

Silvers are among the first bats to emerge in the evenings and are distinguished by their fluttering, erratic flight.

Thank you,
Maureen Heidtmann – East Hampton

You Be the Judge

To the Editor:

"Trump was recently ordered to pay E. Jean Carroll $83 million in a defamation lawsuit for defending himself in the media against her politically motivated and baseless accusation of sexual assault. When Joe Biden was accused of sexual assault by Tara Reid, he accused her of lying, and nothing happened to him. When Bill Clinton was accused of sexual assault by multiple women, Hillary called those women 'trailer park trash' and 'bimbos,' and she had to pay nothing. Yet Trump has to pay $83 million in this defamation suit.

"The jury ruled in Ms. Carroll's favor even though she didn't bring in a shred of evidence to support her accusation. She produced no witnesses, no surveillance video, nothing, except her word which she changed on numerous occasions. She didn't know the day, the month, or even the year of the alleged assault. She changed which year it supposedly happened several times, giving Trump no way to disprove the accusation by accounting for his whereabouts. She said she was wearing a Donna Karan dress that had not been produced by the designer yet. In a 1993 column of hers, she joked about having sex on the fourth floor of Bergdorf's, the place where she claims Trump assaulted her. She only came forward with these accusations in 2019 – 25 years after the alleged incident occurred, and it happened to coincide with the release of her new book." – Judd Garrett

If you were a member of the jury, would you find the defendant guilty? It looks like these jurors were hand chosen by someone in a higher authority that despised Donald Trump.

Frank Blume – Colchester

Your Culpability

To the Editor:

Although it may seem unfair (and it is), we as individuals can be judged harshly on the basis of little evidence. After all, who really knows us? Here is one judgment that conservatives must consider when they vote. If you vote for Donald Trump, you will be associated not only with any sound ideas he may have (if any), but also with many vile and onerous attitudes and actions. A vote for Trump is an acceptance of xenophobia, homophobia, misogyny, and suppression. It is not only a rejection of Joe Biden, but an acceptance of Joe McCarthy and a paranoid police state. It is acquiescence to the rabble masquerading as patriots such as Oath Keepers and Proud Boys. They justify hooliganism and hate under the guise of constitutional sanctions, and their apologists/supporters in government allow and champion their vigilante tactics.

If you vote for Trump you are culpable for the actions of the far-right groups who will be empowered by him. You will have added to the decline of America, not its greatness, which is based on freedom and civility, not coercion and hatred. If you vote for Trump you should not blanch at the iniquity and wickedness that follows, for you will have condoned it with your vote. The same goes for votes for Trump sycophants running for other offices.

As a "liberal" I am not asking anyone to forswear Jesus, fiscal responsibility, patriotism, mom and apple pie. However, unless a Republican renounces Trumpism and its adherents, he or she will be lumped in with the radical right and their extreme interpretations of conservatism. And if you aren't fully aligned with them (and the correct "them!"), watch your back. They'll be coming for you next!

at at all.”

Still, he acknowledged that since the property is owned by the town, a concept or goal for that land “has to be addressed” at some point.

The unambiguous shift towards revamping the town’s current site — one that is listed at “GB” site, or an area that has impaired groundwater — came after a community survey revealed residents had little desire to relocate the project.

The survey period extended from June 6 through July 15, with 725 people completing it, in addition to over 700 submitted comments and reactions.

When asked for a preferred DPW site choice, 69% of respondents selected the current facility location on Old Colchester Road; construction at Kinney Road was the second highest preference with 16%; a hybrid option that would primarily involve construction at Kinney Road, except with the proposed salt storage shed being shifted to an off-site location, was listed at 10%. An additional 9% of respondents opted for another site, while 5% had no site preference.

Kasper said those results gave the action committee a clear charge to provide a proposal for reconstructing or expanding the current site.

However, one of the reasons the town initially pivoted away from that idea was due to space constraints — an issue that still exists. To solve that problem, the town has looked into acquiring an adjacent property owned by Eversource — a purchase that Kasper said residents would also need to approve.

He explained that Eversource would likely want to sell the entire property, roughly 32 acres, rather than a smaller portion. The town would only need around 2.5 acres to efficiently expand the current facility, but Kasper said the town may explore an open-space option if it needs to obtain more.

Without acquiring extra land, reconstructing the Old Colchester Road site becomes significantly more challenging.

“It’s definitely possible,” Kasper said regarding whether the site would still be workable without the additional parcel. “We would have to compromise on something at that site.”

Most likely, the transfer station that is currently located at that property would need to be reduced in some capacity, or even entirely relocated. The town would seek public input in that scenario and determine whether sacrificing the current system is worthwhile and acceptable. Kasper added that the town would need to come up with an alternative plan in case the transfer station was impacted, expressing that there’s been “no discussion of providing less services.”

Both the town and Eversource are seeking appraisals for the property, and the acquisition would also require approval from the state Public Utilities Regulatory Authority.

Simply repairing the current complex on an ongoing basis is also not an option, Kasper explained, stating that substantial upgrades are needed rather than a quick fix.

“We’re beyond the point of urgency,” he conveyed, listing an array of safety hazards and facility shortfalls. “They need to be changed.”

Next Steps

The action committee is working to update the schematics for the Old Colchester Road site. A space analysis was conducted roughly 10 years ago by Nathan L. Jacobson & Associates and BL Companies; those reports require further information, including operational needs, in order to enter a new design phase.

Previously, the town received estimates from both companies to design a facility at Kinney Road totaling $244,800. That funding was originally included in the 2023-24 budget proposal, but was ultimately removed. It’s unknown how much modernized plans at Old Colchester Road would cost.

As the town receives modern, updated cost assessments, Kasper warned that residents may find the total project cost “alarming,” especially compared to what it likely would’ve cost a decade ago.

Included with the informational document attached to the community survey was a potential bottom-line figure of $15-$20 million, with an annual taxpayer increase of $150-$325. Kasper expressed that whatever the exact taxpayer burden ends up being will likely be the most relevant number when assessing the feasibility of the project.

At times, the project has appeared stalled; one survey respondent relayed the ongoing toll on the community.

“I was always proud of my town but since this controversy began I have become disheartened,” the respondent wrote.

The town previously hired a consultant, DK Advertising, out of Bloomfield, on a $15,000 contract to assist with the production and roll-out of that survey; that arrangement is now over.

As the project moves ahead — possibly a year out from a referendum — Kasper expressed confidence that a vote will eventually take place and that the committee’s work has been productive.

“I think it’s a good idea in the sense that the public asked for it,” he said.
